Volume XXIX

The mass confusion and general hub-bub dies down just before the late bell rings as Becky DeWitt briefly pauses at her locker on the way to class.

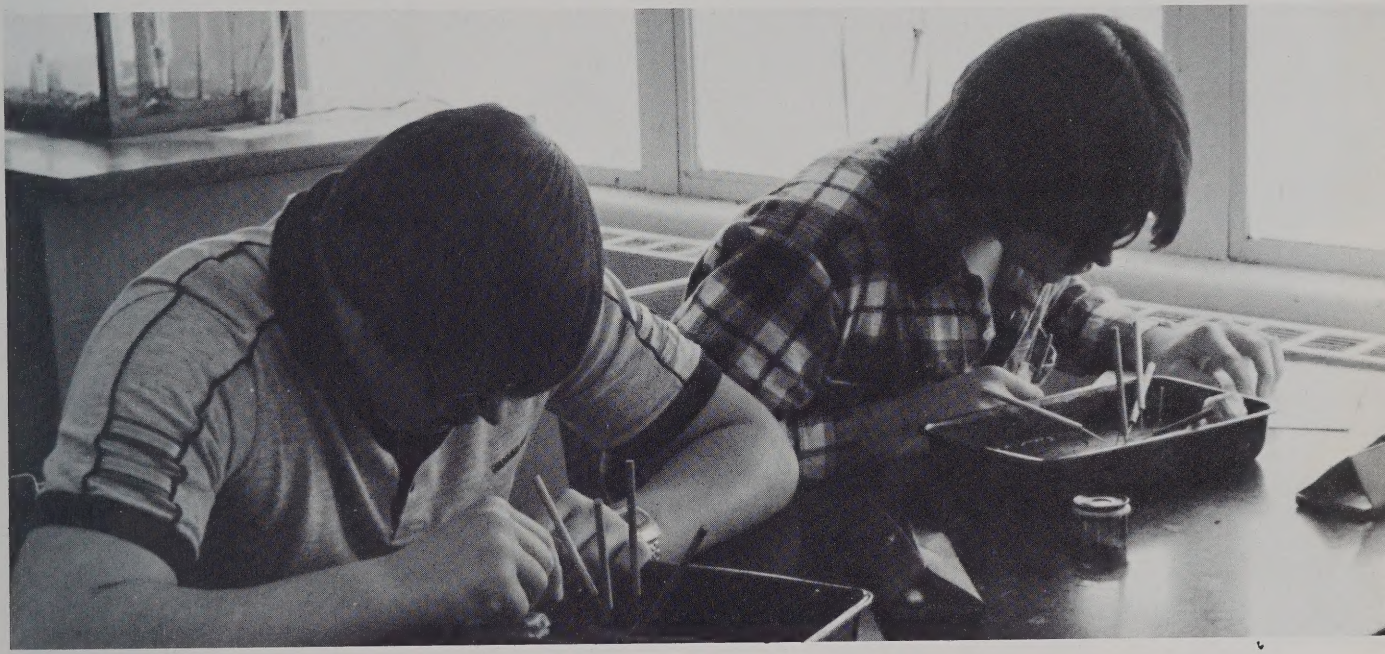
To any students, each year seemed much like the last, with similar courses, activities, lunches, and even classmates and teachers. Whether we realized it or not, each year did have its own unique characteristics, and the year of 1981 was no different. The North Star staff chose to portray the year with the theme, "caught in the web." Being "caught in the web" could be good, bad, or perhaps neither good nor bad. The activities portrayed were either everyday, occasional, or once-in-a-lifetime occurances.

Taking time out of regular school work, Toni Sutton, Donna Wilburn, and Kathy Savage demonstrate their child care abilities during Play School.

After deciding who receives the kick-off, team members show their sportsmanship by a handshake with the opposing team.

Students Swept Up In Activities

Dissecting fishworms was a requirement in Mr. Green's 10th grade Biology class. Luke Maust and Mark Daugherty carefully make an incision so as not to puncture the organs.



Using Franciene Durst as a model, Leroy Raines gives valuable pointers about hair care to the Home Ec. classes.

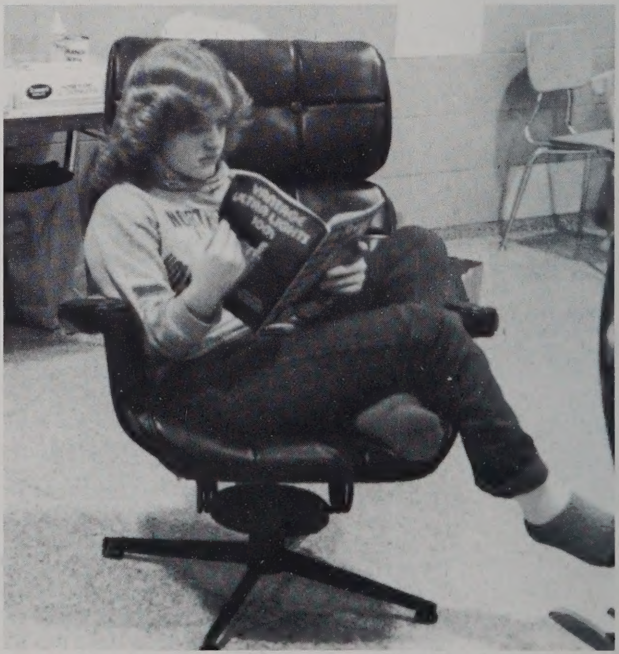
Breaking Away From The Norm

Carefully lighting a Bunsen burner, Stanley Eggleston and JoAnn Deal prepare to bend glass in a Chemistry lab.

DEEP CREEK
UMYF
YOUTH

Life at school didn't always mean going from one class to another and taking notes day after day. Being "caught in the web" allowed a person to break away from the normal, everyday aspects of school. On some days, Physics, Chemistry, or Biology students participated in labs which gave new insight into the material being covered. Spirit week and home games provided chances for school members to prove their loyalty to the home team. Professional photographers broke into regular class time to provide portraits for the yearbook. Every week of the year had something new and different to offer.



"Rock around the clock" is exactly what Lani Dailey does during the Girl's Varsity rock-a-thon.

Breaking away from the common routine, Kirt and Jana Harshman dress up as Raggedy Ann and Andy to show their school spirit during spirit week.

Posing for a formal picture to be used in the yearbook, Mrs. Maggie Pratt awaits the "click" of the Josten Photographer's camera.

Boosting team spirit and discussing a new strategy, the girls' basketball team huddles before proceeding further into the game.

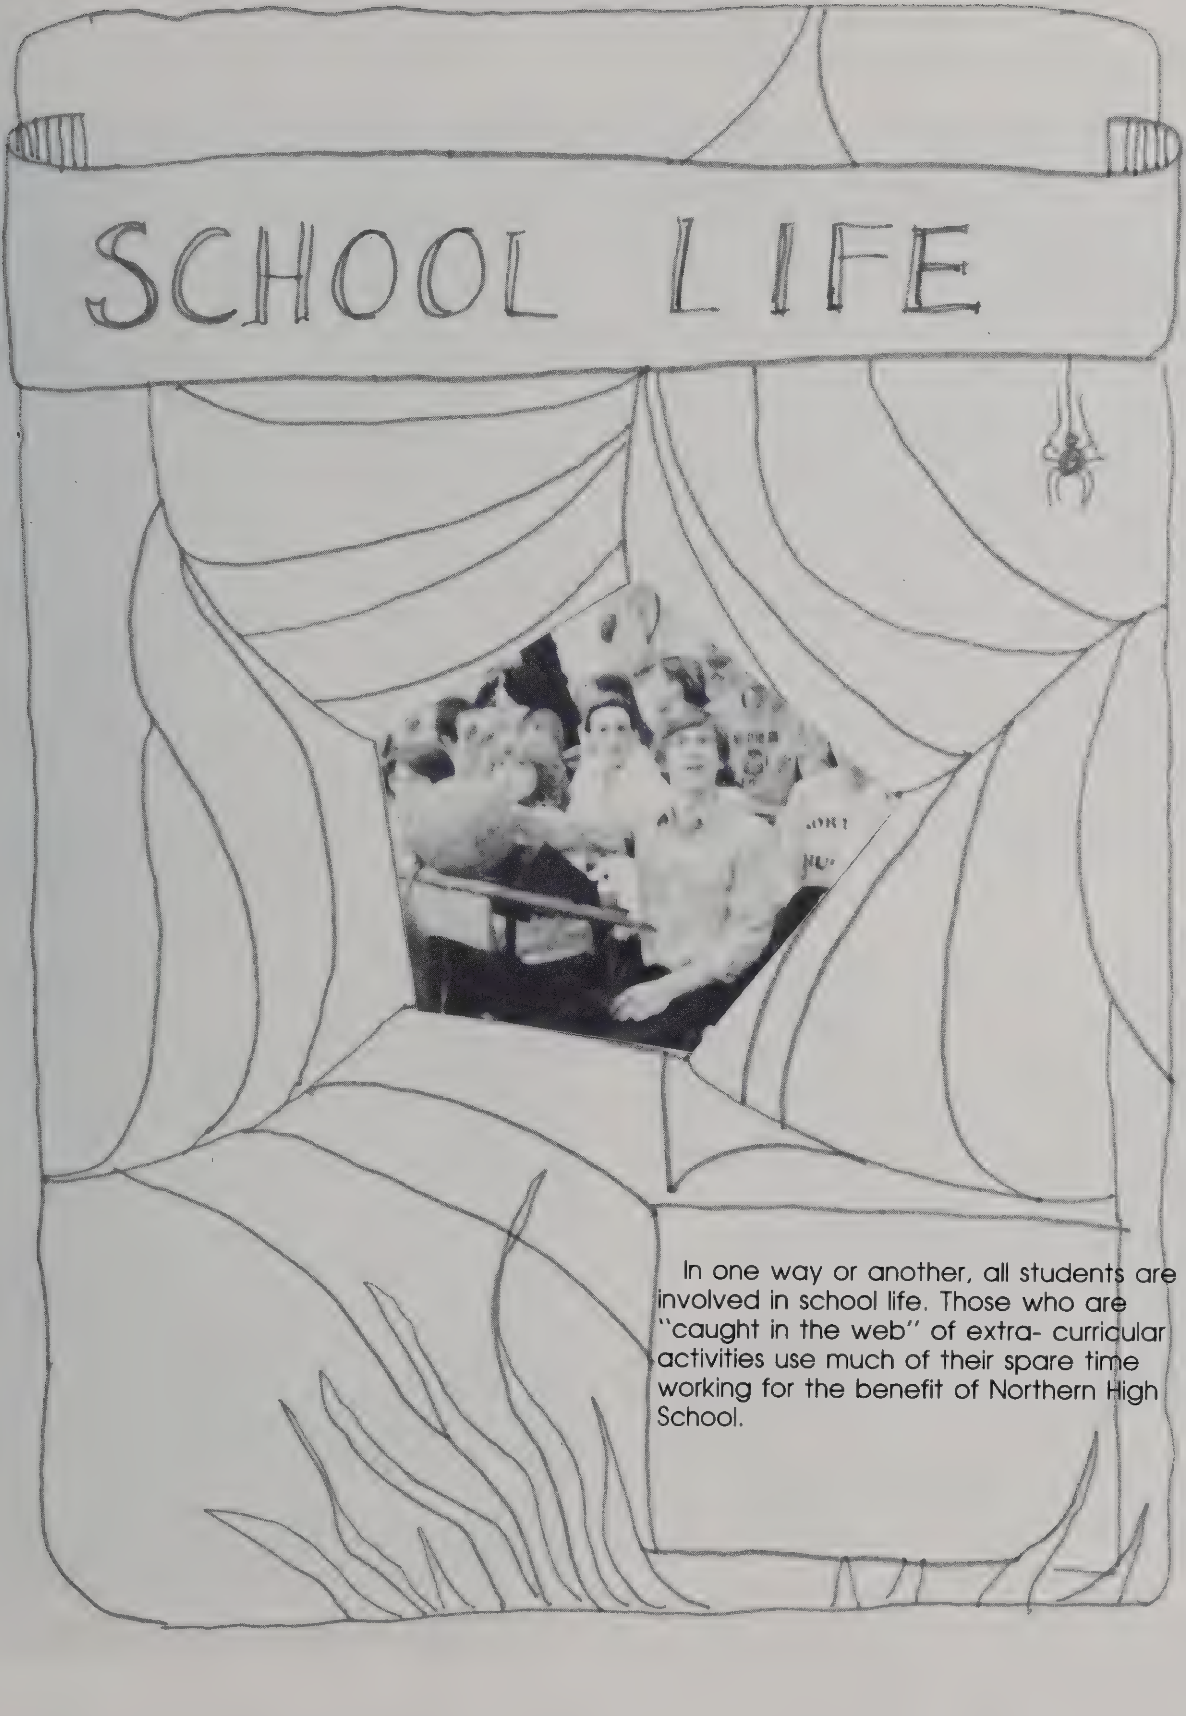
Practice Makes Perfect

Cheering the wrestlers on from the sidelines, the cheerleaders verify the fact that their school spirit doesn't stop when they leave the floor.

It took an abundance of patience and practice to do anything perfectly. Anyone who wishes to be successful found themselves "caught in the web" of long hours of hard, repetitious practice. Cheerleaders and sports players went home with sore, exhausted muscles during training. Dedicated scholars dropped into bed at night with tired fingers and drooping eyes after writing and studying for hours. The hard work was worthwhile when the students, teachers, or workers came out on top, realizing they had done their best.

In spite of her busy schedule, Mrs. Edna Bender consents to demonstrate her artistic ability to Mrs. Lucile Sines' American Folklore class.

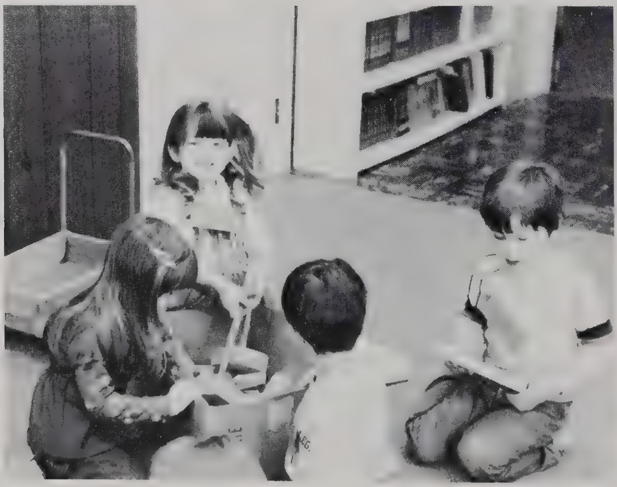
SCHOOL LIFE



In one way or another, all students are involved in school life. Those who are "caught in the web" of extra- curricular activities use much of their spare time working for the benefit of Northern High School.

Home Economic Department Heads Project "Playschool"

Renee Garlitz takes a turn in looking after the little tots.

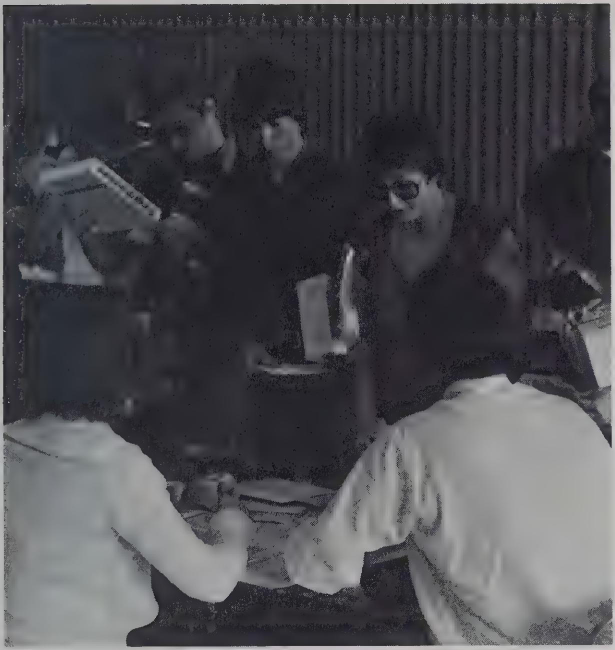


The children have a wide variety of playthings and toys to choose from as they spend the day in the Home Economics room.

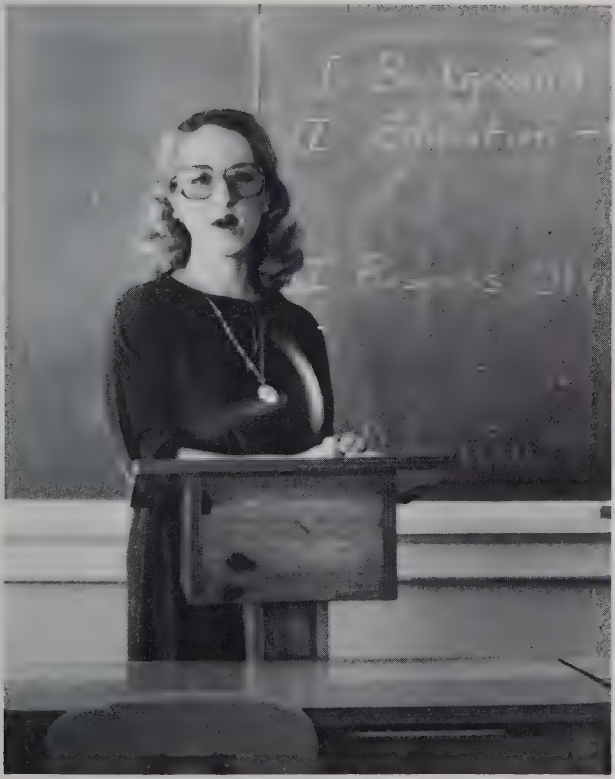
When the children first arrive, they are given tags so the students working with Playschool can learn their names.

Guests Add Variety To School Day

Seniors receive graduation caps and gowns from the Josten's Representative.



Public Health Nurse, Carol Clark, lectures to the Family Life class.



Marjorie Keller Fratz presents a speech to the business classes concerning business education.

Breaking the ice of the normal school days, guests came to various classes to speak on topics which sometime became major discussions. This not only relieved the teachers from their day to day lectures, but also helped to encourage the students as well.

Murals, Posters

Student Council members Jim Fox and Lisa Clutter keep the activities bulletin board up to date with the school's latest events.

Studying the Jazz Age, Mrs. Vonda Yunker's U.S. history classes put up a bulletin board illustrating terms that were first created in the 20's.

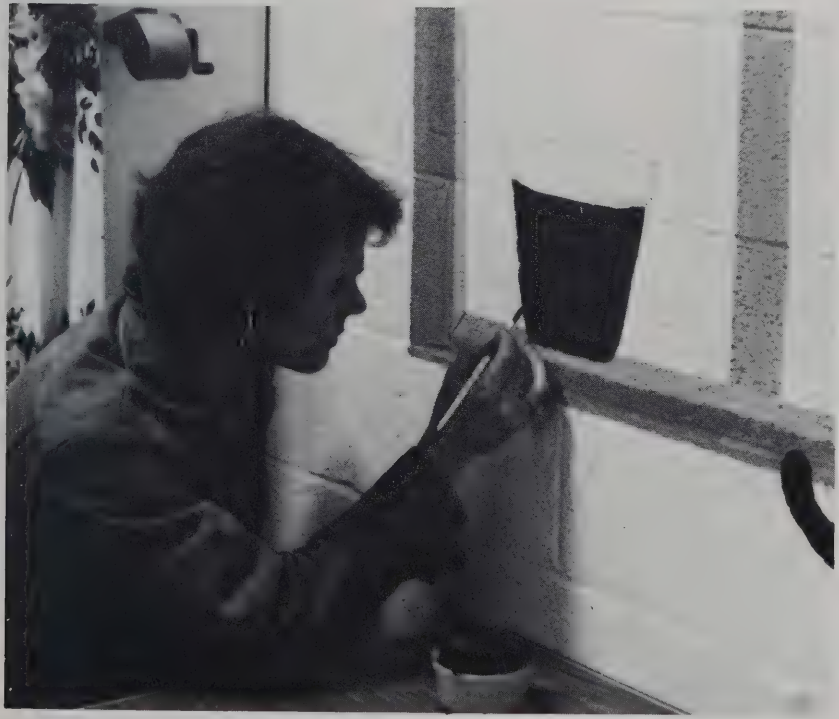
Break Boredom

In a playful mood, Mrs. Linda Buckel cuts letters for a bulletin board in her classroom.

Decorating the walls for the Faculty Tea, the "Noel" expresses the Christmas spirit.



Adding more color to the wall, George Swauger paints a mural in Mr. Jack Lear's office.

A school wall or door can be a rather boring sight when one is sitting in a classroom. To break up the boredom, teachers post colorful class-related bulletin boards, and students decorate walls and doors with spirit posters or holiday decorations. This change in scenery makes it easier for everyone to endure the unchanging schedule of classes.

Education Continues After

Playing her role as the girls' softball coach, Mrs. Vonda Yunker gives the girls fielding practice as Carol Wilt catches.

Discussing the new sheet music for band are Denise Friend and Lisa Clutter, two participants in band.

Making signs is only part of the job of a cheerleader as, illustrated by Debbie Wagner and Rosie Wiley.

Dwylin Miller and Keith Roach stand "kings of the mountain" on a God Squad field trip.

High School Day

At the God Squad rock-a-thon, Laverna Bender rocks and talks the day away.

Bumping the ball at volleyball practice, Cindy Sines' teammates look on.

On the night of the senior party, LeeAnn Cervi, Robin Rodeheaver, Sherry Beitzel, and Tracy Sisler participate in a volleyball game.

If educational experience were limited to the regular school day, education would be limited, indeed, and if all school-related activities were suddenly removed from the lives of Northern students, the day would certainly seem much longer! The majorettes, cheerleaders, drill team and athletic teams stayed for regular practices. On occasion, clubs and other groups stayed for activities or to prepare for special event.

Students Presented Awards For

Acquiring honors in baseball for their outstanding ability, are Brian Gilbert, Dick Bender, Steve Fratz, and Phil Carr.

Exhibiting his ability in the Vocational Field, Mike Bradshaw receives a certificate for exemplary work in Auto Mechanics.

Displaying the plaque on which her name is engraved, Patty Collins gains recognition as the outstanding FHA member.

Outstanding Achievements

For their efforts in Physical Fitness, Belinda Friend, Becky Dewitt, Twila Maust, Melrose Hanft, and Kate Klotzbaugh, are recognized for achieving the Presidential Physical Fitness Award.

On May 21, Northern held its 27th annual awards assembly. Numerous awards were presented to outstanding students in academic and extra-curricular fields. Among those who received awards, but are not pictured, were students who excelled in Vocational Education: Vo. Ag., Alan Guard; Building Trades, Barry Maust; Drafting, Jamie Vincent; Business Education, Phyllis Yoder; Electronics, Philip Smith; Greenhouse, Jimmie Fazenbaker; and Residential Wiring, Sam VanSickle. These awards were presented by Dr. Donald Ruhl, President of Garrett Community College, representing the Garrett County Vocational Council.

In recognition for outstanding work in the Business Field, Sherry Beitzel, Shelley King, Linda Yunker, and Laura Stanton are presented pins for their achievments.

By accumulating over 1000 points for school-related activities, Charlotte Maust, Linda Miller, and Lisa Clutter are awarded certificates of merit.

For the scholastic achievement of being a Distinguished Honor Roll student for four grading periods, Linda Yunker acknowledges her certificate of award.

Seniors Gain Experience

Assembled alphabetically in the gym, the senior class waits for further instructions as to how to receive their diplomas.

Waiting eagerly to mount the platform, seniors wait for their names to be called to receive reservation tickets.

Receiving tickets for reserved seats, Gary Friend accepts his from senior advisor, Mr. Robert Yunker.

In Mock Graduation

Hoping to perfect the choral performance for graduation, Mr. Schwing conducts the chorus as they practice "Graduation Prayer" and "Life is What You Make It."

Practice makes perfect. Seniors learned the hard way by practicing the practical details of the graduation ceremonies over and over until they were executed perfectly. To seniors, exiting posed particular problems. Spacing between pairs had to be perfect, and practicing it was the only way to get it learned.

Through receiving tickets for reserved seats, seniors learned the proper procedure in accepting their diplomas and shaking the hand of the School Board representative.

After practicing for most of the morning and when seniors knew the techniques well enough for Graduation Night, they left with much elation and celebration of their last day.

After practicing most of the morning, seniors anxiously await the final exit and their dismissal.

Homecoming: A Week

Showing their support to the team, the cheerleaders perform a routine.

Homecoming spurred a week of school spirit and team support. Early in the week the student council sponsored a bonfire night, in which student participation was led by the team, the band, the drill team, and the cheerleaders. With a big 10-0 victory over the Meyersdale Raiders the Huskies Homecoming was a great success. Candidates for Homecoming Queen were: Tracy Sisler, who won the title, Lisa Clutter, Robin Rodeheaver, Barb Brenneman, and LeeAnn Cervi and Kathy Garlock, not pictured.

While the Drill Team struts, the team turns to see the band coming on to the field.

Escorted by her brother Larry, Tracy Sisler accepts the Homecoming queen title.

October Presents Another Year Of Autumn Glory

A sunny beautiful day holds good promises for the Autumn Glory Parade, as the float with the Queen, Maid of Honor, and other participants with their escorts goes by.

Sitting with her escort Dick Bender, Barbara Bowser, crowned this year's Autumn Glory Princess, feels the excitement of being in a parade as people clap, smile, and wave as they ride along.

Chosen to be Maid of Honor is Northern's Angie Zehr, who is escorted by James Fox.

Contests, Contests, Contests . . . . .

Getting the annual Magazine Campaign off to a good start, Mr. Hanna tells of the wonderful prizes available when magazines are sold.

While Charlotte Maust carefully calculates the daily sales, Fred Fox pets a Snoopy Dog, one of the prizes from the magazine campaign.

Throughout the year, students were "caught in the web" of various activities. The annual Magazine Campaign was conducted for the student body to raise money for various school funds. The grand total raised was $12,723.76. A candidate from each homeroom was elected to run for Heart Fund Queen. The highest collector was awarded the crown. The total collected was $937.20. Two contests promoted by the Student Council were the door decorating contest and an American Education Week Poster contest. All together the compeititon increased student interest in the school's support.

Watched by all the candidates for Heart Fund Queen, Connie Wiley receives the crown from Mr. Bittinger.

Career Day — Planning Your Future

During a break, Charlotte Maust chats with social worker, Don Quinn, about the aspects of careers in social work.

LeeAnn Cervi and George Belch come out of a seminar on marriage led by Manning Smith.

Comparing their material, Sheera Brandes and Mary Beiler join the others in the lounge.

In recent years, Garrett Community College has sponsored a Career Day for Northern and Southern students, aiming to help them plan their careers. Seminars were provided in such areas as "Women in the 80's", "Drug Prevention", and "Microprocessing." A scheduled hour was set for students to meet with different college representatives.

A lunch break with Smith and Roberts as entertainment was given for students to enjoy the leisure time and discuss what they had learned.

A Week Of Initiations Brings

Posing in the lobby are Stan Eggleston, Lowell Yoder, George Dailey, and Greg Durst, wearing dresses for the Lettermen's Club initiation, though appearing to be contestants for a Miss Legs show.

With arms squeezing through the sleeves fo a blouse worn for the Lettermen's initiation week, Kenny Butler calls home for a ride.

Standing in diapers, different shoes and socks, football jerseys and baseball caps, Cindy Sines and Judy Green pay their price for getting into the Girls' Athletic Club.

The FHA gets into action as girls in that club are initiated by carrying teddy bears and dressed up eggs.

Embarrasing Moments For Club Members

In the careteria, Corky Wachter heads Northern's new lettermen in the school fight song as part of their initiation.

Discussing the advantages and disadvantages of wearing dresses for initiation instead of their normal attire, Randy Yommer and Darren Kamp agree on one thing, jeans are better.

Sitting at lunch, Mary Frazee poses her teddy bear she is carrying for FHA initiation.

Initiation weeks at Northern are always full of fun and surprises. This year the Lettermen's Club, Girl's Varsity Club and the Future Homemakers of America got into the action. The Lettermen's Club started off the activity with the participants having to wear dresses. Next came the Girl's Varsity wearing diapers and carrying lollipops. Finally the FHA, having to tote dressed up eggs and stuffed animals, rounded off the activities.

A Visit From The Red Cross

For the first time, Northern had a bloodmobile visit. The Red Cross asked for donations from those 17 years old and older. The goal was set for 50 donors, but the turnout was much better, with more than ninety people willing to donate their blood for the help of others. Although there were a few small "tragedies" for first time donors, the overall process ran smoothly, and a total of 77 pints of blood was collected.

Labeling blood bags keeps Regina Bender and Tracy Sisler busy.

Northern's First Bloodmobile

The first stop on the way to the blood donor area is the paper-work table. After presenting her appointment card to Debbie Selby, Kim Kinsinger accepts an information pamphlet from Lisa Moore and is motioned on to the next station.

After draining a pint of blood from his body, a Red Cross nurse instructs Mr. Melvin Schwing to raise his arm in order to stop the flow of blood.

Juniors Capture "Springtime Magic"

Among the candidates for prom queen, Lisa Clutter becomes the lucky girl to reign as queen.

Receiving the queen's bonquet of red roses from Junior Class president, Fred Fox, Lisa Clutter exhibits joyous tears.

The nominees for prom queen were selected by each homeroom in the junior class. A ballot was made with each girl's name on it, and the eleventh grade class voted to select the winner. Results of the balloting were not announced until prom night when it was revealed that Lisa Clutter had been chosen queen.

The prom turned out to be a great success. The McHenry House was decorated with streamers, butterfly mobiles, and other accessories in springtime colors, all adding to the theme of "Springtime Magic."

The candidates and their escorts listen attentively for the final answer of who will be named prom queen. Pictured are Mike Bradshaw, Patty Collins, Jeff Frost, Lee Ann Cervi, Rick Nugent, Mary Ross, Duane Butler, Lisa Clutter, Kevin Bender, and Cindi Carr.

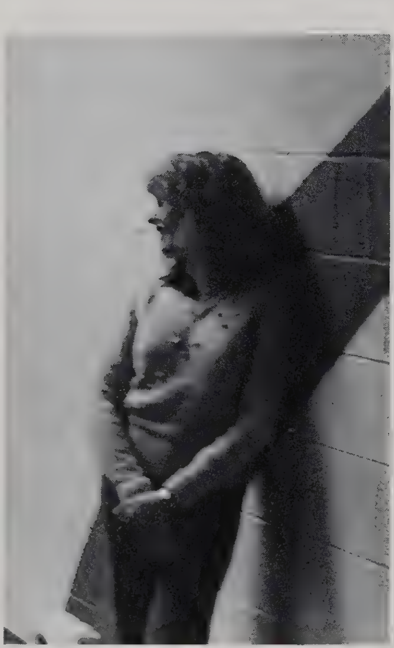
College Classes Aid In Academic Growth

Completing a high school education does not require confinement to one building and its classrooms. Early College Admission was taken by students who planned on a head start for their careers.

By attending Garrett Community College, Heidi Bittner, Donna McFetridge, Angie Zehr, and Katrina Stieringer advance their education while completing the curriculum needed for high school graduation.



Katrina Stieringer, with hopes for a career in nursing, starts college early by entering the Early College Admissions Program.

Northern Suffers Disappointing

Injuries Cause Collapse In Offensive Line

The best turn-out in years provided the Varisty football team with lots of talent as the Huskies took off to a fast start with wins over Berlin and Tygarts Valley. Injuries caused a collapse in offense, however, and the Huskies scored only 8 points in three consecutive losses before rallying to crush Elk Garden 47-12. One win deserves another, and the "Maddogs" shut out Meyersdale in the homecoming game ten to nothing before losing to Valley. A strong defense which prevailed throughout the year gave up only 6 points in the battle with arch-rival Southern; but, alas, the Huskies lost 6-0 to finish the season with a 4-5 record.

Front Row-Rob Thomas, Phil Carr, Phil Margroff, John Swauger, Don Jenkins, Dave Georg, George Belch, Scott Rodeheaver, Keith Harman Second Row-Coach Jack Settle, Greg Carr, Rob Carr, Mike Eggleston, Greg Diehl, Jeff Spiker, Greg Durst, Scott Graham, Troy Margroff, Luke Maust, Randy Yommer, George Swauger, Coach Harv Speicher Third Row-Pork Wilt, Steve Fratz, Mike Bradshaw, Corky Wachter, Rick Yommer, Mike Robinson, Stan Eggleston, Larry Frazee, Ken Butler, and Ken Wolf

Defensive strategy, a decisive factor at Tygarts Valley, is discussed by Steve Fratz and Mike Robinson.

4-5 Season

The Husky defense prevails as Greg Carr shellacs the opposing ballcarrier.

The official's upraised arms are worth a thousand words—or at least 999—as Troy Margroff crosses the goal line.

Homecoming Game Produces Big

The Northern Aerial attack is successfully rendered as Greg Carr passes to Mike Bradshaw for a touchdown against Berlin in a home game.

The field-goal unit protects the kicker as Mike Bradshaw successfully drills the pigskin through the uprights.

Offensive Linemen pull right as Stan Eggleston (#73) points the way. Unfortunately their help is too late as Bob Lipscomb (#27) and John Swauger (#51) close in.

Victory Over Meyersdale

Despite a losing 4-5 record, the 1980 team recorded several highlights. Perhaps the biggest was the homecoming victory over Meyersdale, which ended a four-year win streak over the Huskies. A strong defense which yielded less than 10 points per game recorded two shut outs and allowed only 15 touchdowns. William "Pork" Wilt and Greg Carr were chosen to the Highland Football All-Star Conference for their respective duties as defensive linebacker and defensive safety. "Pork" led his team in tackles, while Greg recorded the highest number of interceptions.

The 1980 Northern J.V. football team took on a disappointing note as they lost their first two games to Bishop Walsh and Valley. In the third game however, the defense took command and crushed Turkeyfoot and Bruce in shutouts. A.J. McMullen was held, as both teams battled to a scoreless tie. The Huskies were then stunned by a tough Beall team as they were clouted 36-6. The season was finished with a loss to West Preston and a big win over arch-rival Southern in two defensively minded games.

A first down pass is successfully completed to a wide-open Greg Diehl in a losing cause to Valley.

The members of the team proudly display the trophy which they captured in the big win over arch-rival Southern. The victory gave them permanent possession of the rotating trophy.

Successful Season Is

The powerful serve of Donna Ringer is displayed in a match versus Calvary Christian at a home match.

Rapid acquistion of skills and experienced leadership aided Coach Vonda Yunker's team to a successful 1980 campaign. Combined effort and comradeship among members gained a 9-5 record and a birth in the playoffs. The female Huskies recorded victories over tough Fort Hill and Oldtown teams and stuffed the Southern Rams in 2 of 3 matches to gain the county championship. The playoffs proved to be too much for the Huskies, however, and the young team fell in succession to Mt. Savage, Beall, and a hungry Valley team.

The spiking ability of Linda Yunker proves ominous to Calvary Christian's hopes for victory.

Senior members Kathy Garlock, Patty Collins, and Barbara Bowser add a special dimension to Northern Volleyball.

As captain of the varsity team Dick Bender is introduced first to the Northern-Southern crowd.

The Huskies scored three mild upsets enroute to their final 12-11 record. Recording an upset over Beall in the third game of the season, the Huskies lost to Class C State Championship Valley before scoring another upset over a tough Bruce Team 43-42. Racing through the season with a nearly as many wins as losses the Huskies approached the Mt. Savage game cautiously, recording a victory and gaining 7th place in area team ratings. Later, in the second to last game of regular season, a revenge minded Bruce team was shocked as the Huskies again stole the show 62-60.

Upon going over half-court, Lowell Yoder throws an overhead pass to start the offense.

The 1980-81 J.V. Basketball Team finished with a 3-15 record. Their first victory was the opening home game of the season against Salisbury. They then fell into a ten game losing streak before beating Oldtown on the Husky hardwood. Meeting Flintstone in their next game, the Huskies emerged with a decisive victory. The remaining five games were close, but the Huskies came out on the losing end of each.

The team, composed of one junior, three sophomores, and nine freshmen was the youngest J.V. team in the area. The team was lead by Rich Humberson who had the most points and rebounds.

Having penetrated the Indian zone, Christy Fratz makes a move inside the lane.

Several Husky players attempt to get rebounding position as the shot goes up in the air.

Grabbing a defensive rebound, Christi Fratz attempts an outlet pass to start a fast break.

Final Record 5-12

Teaching fundamentals to her young team, Coach Wengerd makes sure she is getting her point across.

Wrestlers' Record Winning Season . . .

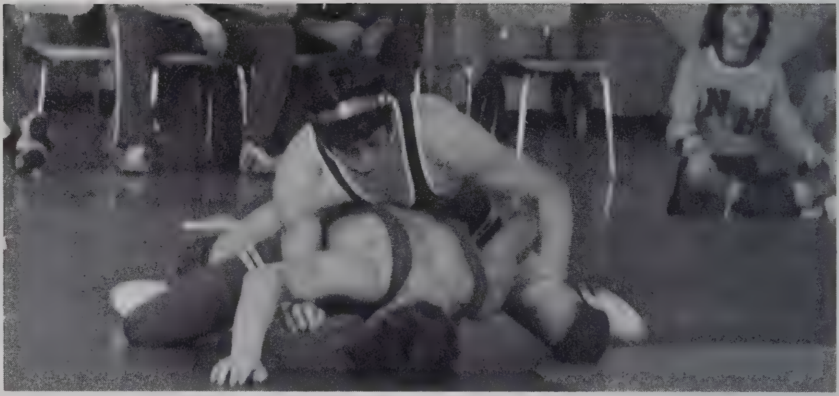
A headlock is demonstrated by George Belch as he waits for the referee's whistle. George attained a 10-1 record and recorded eight pins for the Huskies.

. . . But Express Disappointment

Riding his opponent and waiting for the chance to turn him over, Darren Kamp aids the Huskies with an 8-2 record.



The '81 Husky Grapplers suffered only two losses enroute to a nearly perfect 9-2 season as a result of hard and extensive training. Racking up seven consecutive wins, the Huskies prepared to meet some tough opposition from Beall, and they got it. The Mountaineers stopped the Huskies for their first setback, 38-22. Entering Berlin, the Huskies were shocked 35-15 before crushing arch- rival Southern 47-14 and Bruce 56-9. Attaining a perfect record for Northern was William "Pork" Wilt at 10-0, while Don Gillim went 10-2 and Troy Margroff went 8-3 to take up slack for less experienced wrestlers.

Preventing a roll by his Southern opponent, Jamie Spiker mentally reviews the skills taught to him during practice sessions.

Strengh prevails as Troy Margroff drives into his cross-country foe to capture the 145-pound championship.

Hoping to pin his opponent soon, Mervin Kamp prevents his opponent from attaining a reversal.

With Imperfect Record

Hoping for a setup, Jeff Graham watches his Southern opponent. The student body witnesses his match as Northern exercises their ability, 47-14.

Northern Big-Man "Pork" Wilt merely awaits the referee's call to gain yet another victory in the unlimited weight class. Unfortunately for Pork, a knee injury prevented him from entering state competition, where he had place fourth last year.

The only undefeated wrestler on the team this season, "Pork" Wilt, recorded 9 pins.

Congratulations Seniors!

Senior grapplers, wrestling for their last year, will be sorely missed by wrestling fans. These members are Jeff Spiker, Don Gillum, "Pork" Wilt, and Dave Stein.

Young Ball Club Improves

The 1981 Baseball Team finished with a record of six wins against eleven defeats. This year's team was very inexperienced with only nine people returning and thirteen "rookies". To help the team, a batting cage was bought so that real baseballs could be hit in the gym instead of tennis balls. The team beat Bruce once, defeated Bruceton Mills and Flintsone twice, and trounced Southern to permanently retire the Rotating Trophy.

Caught in a rundown between third base and homeplate, the Flintstone Aggies make a putout on Steve Fratz.

Choking up on his bat and eyeing the pitcher carefully, leadoff batter Fred Fox desires to reach base.

With Each Game

The three seniors that provided leadership throughout the season are Steve Fratz, Dick Bender, and Jeff Frost.

Watching the ball hit the bat, Tim Yunker strides into a fastball and gets a base hit.

A Flintstone runner steals second base as Don Jenkins receives the peg from the catcher too late.

Huskies Capture Rotating Trophy

Ace of the pitching staff, Dick Bender, starts his wind-up, hoping to retire his Flintstone opponent on strikes.

Starting in his freshman year, Phil Carr prepares to start a Northern rally with a base hit.

First baseman Steve Fratz makes a put-out of a Flintstone batter at the receiving end of a throw from an infielder.

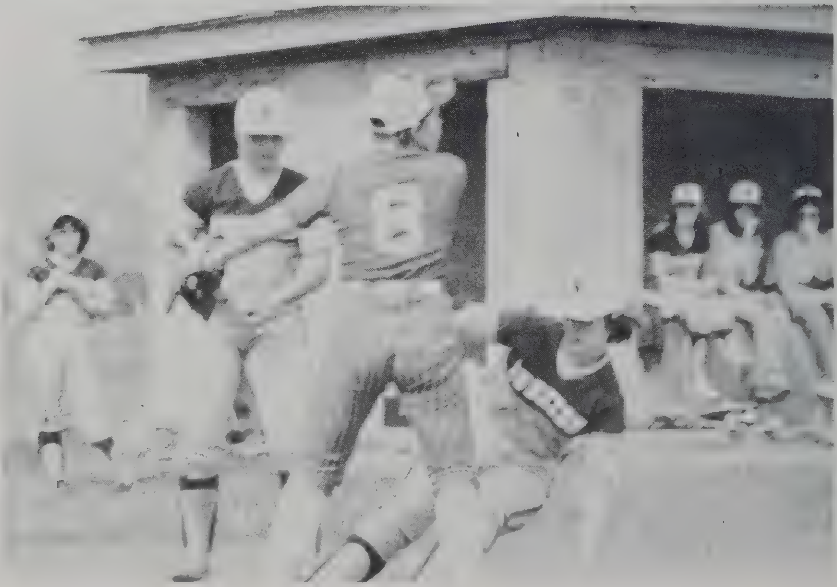
Offense is pitted against defense as Shelly King attempts to hit safely against Turkeyfoot.

Youth And Enthusiasm Doesn't

The female athlete of the year, Patty Collins, descends upon home plate, happy to be in a winning cause.

Christi Fratz fouls back in her attempt to generate a game-winning rally.

The 1981 Softball campaign hit a few rough notes enroute to a disheartening 2-8 season. Lady Luck turned her back on the female Huskies as they lost to arch-rival Southern in three of four attempts, including an 11-10 thriller. The Huskies won only one other game against Salisbury, 14-7 and came close in an 8-7 loss earlier. The '81 season cannot be attributed a total loss, however, as each girl gained the vital experience needed, and all but three seniors should return next year.



Two female Huskies wait patiently for their turn at bat as Shelly King adds another point to the Huskies' score.

Always Provide A Win

A threatening aim can be attributed to catcher Carol Wilt as she casts a menacing look at runner with obvious thought of advancing.

Executing her particular style, Shelly King attempts to strike out the opposing batter.

Senior members of the softball team consist of Cindi Carr, Lori Sisler, and Patty Collins.

Activity with purpose characterized the North Garrett FFA projects. Money collected in the annual fruit sales was used to help defray costs of other operations. The state judging contest brought back North Garrett's first winning team in tobacco judging. Team members had prepared themselves for judging in this category by studying tobacco leaves brought from Maryland's Eastern Shore by FFA friends, and so were able to place in state competition in judging a crop that is seldom grown in Garrett County.

An annual event for the faculty and staff is the Christmas Tea Party, prepared by the FHA Club.

Members of the FHA began the year by attending a fall leadership Training Camp at Summit Lake. Later, they attended a Regional meeting at Clear Springs and State Conference in Frederick. For the "good deeds" of the year, they visited the Goodwill Mennonite Nursing Home and held the Annual Staff and Faculty Christmas Tea. In order to raise money, the FHA sponsored a Tupperware Sale, a dance, a Crafts and Bake Sale, and a rock-a-thon.

During class time, they listened to visiting speakers who demonstrated a variety of of activities ranging from making hardtack candy to styling hair.

Members of the Viking staff labored hard to create an interesting paper best suited to the needs of high school students. The Viking was again awarded the Medalist Award from Columbia Scholastic Press Association and placed first by the Maryland Scholastic Press Association.

Articles written by Rosie Wiley are proofread by Mrs. Lucille Sines for grammar or punctuation errors.

The Yearbook staff suffered from inexperience with only one second-year member. Aside from that, each student worked hard to complete his section for a successful NORTH STAR Yearbook. Learning and benefitting from their mistakes, gradually each student caught on and pages piled up to be checked by the editors as the year drew to a close.

Checking and rechecking their section of the yearbook for errors, Tim Yunker and Lowell Yoder work with Don Warnick in the Sports section.

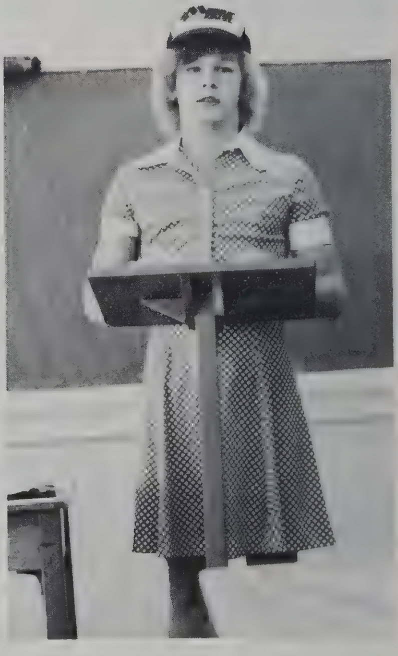
The Lettermens Club and the Girls' Varsity Club consist of nearly everyone who is in a sports activity. The President is in charge of having the Club decide the requirements of initiation, a two-week embarressing ordeal. The main purpose of the clubs is to raise money for letterman jackets. To raise the money, the members spend their time planning dances or participating in money raising schemes, such as selling sponges, pens, rock-a-thon, or selling hoagies. After surviving initiation and planning fund raising events, the club attended a Pittsburgh Pirate baseball game.



Embarrassing as it may be, Randy Yommer must still proceed in his daily requirements.

The 1980-81 Varsity Cheerleading squad had a successful year. To begin their season, they were 1st place runner-up at Cheerleading Camp and received blue ribbons every night. Throughout the sports seasons- football, basketball, and wrestling- the cheerleaders boosted school spirit, held pep rallies, and spirit weeks, and made signs. Through the long hours the girls worked hard, but when they were asked it it was all worth it, they replied, "Yes, every minute of it!"

Two clubs that offered recreation for the intramural sports minded persons were the Ski and Basketball Clubs. They presented experience in each field and provided stiff competition while maintaining a strong influence on recreation and fun. The Ski Club offered a welcomed break from studies by allowing an escape to the slopes, during a school day. On the slopes, each member sharpened his skiing techniques.

Members of the Basketball Club, who were also on the team, spent the club period perfecting their skills during the off season. Those who were not on the team took advantage of the team members' experience. Both clubs provided not only a recreational period, but also an outlet for pent-up energy.

Both the Collectors Club and the Chess Club provided worthwhile and interesting benefits for their members. The Collector's Club was open to students who collected anything, but it was primarily geared towards coin collecting since most of the members were coin collectors. Those who enjoyed chess and were able to concentrate on the game for a long period of time, selected to place their membership in the Chess Club.

Robin Rodeheaver, Tracy Griffith, Libby McCrobie, and Pam Broom provide inspiration for Varsity Football Players at the bonfire.

Members of the drill team put forth much time for practicing. At least two nights a week were sacrificed to provide more experience for each squad member. To qualify, it was necessary for each person to perform to the school song. Each individual that tried out for the position of captain or co-captain was required to create and perform a routine to a song of her choice.

The Council worked through the Social Committee to make any arrangements of a social nature on behalf of the school staff. Chaired by Mr. James Bucy, the FAC had representatives from all academic departments in the school.

Nordique Commends Creative Writing

Silk screening plays a major role in designing cover and division pages of the Nordique. Barbara Oester, Kim Goehringer, and Jackie Gatterman demonstrate the techniques involved.

Provided with poems and compositions from various English classes, the Nordique staff carefully chose the best writings and arranged them in booklet form. The magazine was designed as a feast for the eyes as well as the mind; therefore, club periods were mainly used in providing artwork such as silk screening and cartooning.

Newly prepared silk screen designs are hung on the bulletin board by Melrose Hanft for drying.

ACADEMICS

Academic classes make up the major part of the school day. English, math, history and science are the four required classes. Additional related courses are offered in an attempt to interest more students "caught in the web" of learning.

Class Gives Students Incentive To Read

Reading classes opened up another door to unchallenged students. Students who had reading difficulties particpated in the classes to further their reading skills.

A new class, Advanced Reading, was added to the curriculum. The course taught students speed reading skills and the fundamentals for writing a term paper. These students were encouraged by their teacher, Mrs. Linda Buckel, to read more on their own. The objective of the course was to give students the incentive to read and to realize it's importance.

Hoping to better her reading skills, Emily Georg practices speed reading with Mrs. Buckel's assistence in Advanced Reading.

Illustrating emergency techniques, Julie Wiley bandages Timothy Rounds under the supervision of Don Ringer.

While learning to correctly interpret recipes, Randy McCord and Donna Wilburn mix ingredients properly before baking their apple crisp.

Valuable Creative Talents Uncovered

Art enrollment totaled approximately 144 students. These young artisits learned about Basic, Intermediate, Advanced, and Historic Art. The classes taught students how to design geometric drawing and painting with water colors.

For the second consecutive year, the Art classes traveled to Washington, D.C. They spent May 21 touring selected art galleries with Mrs. Margaret Pratt. Through the program many Northern students uncovered creative talents that proved valuable.

Brightening Mrs. Geri Teats' office wall, George Swauger and Tim Dyche work on an independent project for Advanced Art.

Don Warnick displays the graphic design entry that won him first place in the American Education Week poster contest.

Gary Hinchy and Weldon Yoder work on rough drafts for pencil sketches.

Students Experiment In Science Department

With scissors and scalpel at his side, Marvin Sines examines an earthworm in Biology before disecting it.

Students planning on science careers participated in a variety of science classes. Anatomy and Physiology, instructed by Mr. Martin Green, taught students the functions and disorders of the human body. Chemistry made students aware of chemical compounds and how to decompose substances. Nevertheless, all science courses give insights to potential science scholars.

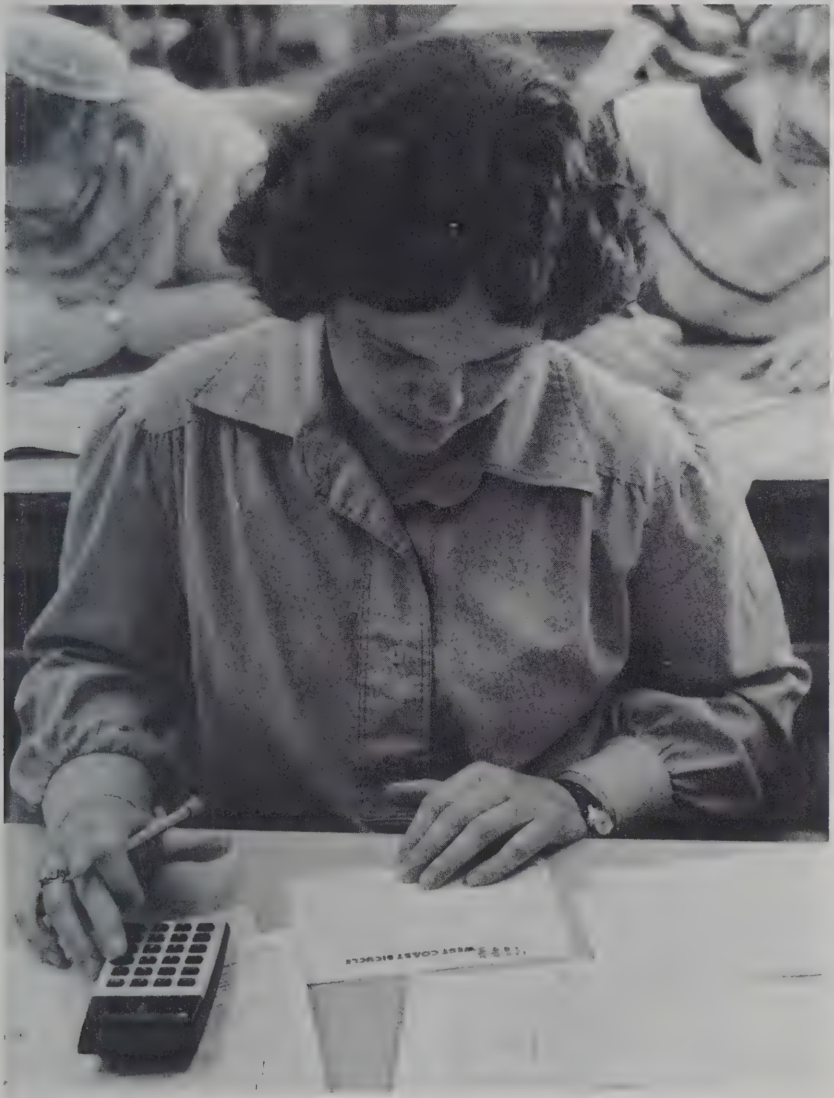
Through examining the cat's muscular system, Lisa Clutter, Dick Bender, and Weldon Yoder gain a better understanding of the human body.

Biology students pose an experimental cat.

Preparing to shape glass tubing, Fred Fox lights a Bunsen burner as Jackie Gatterman and Don Bowman look on.

Students Take Care Of Business

Completing business forms and recording figures is one of Donna Wilburn's requirements in Bookkeeping.



To help establish a good business career, many students completed Typing I. After a year of repetitious typing drills, most students had mastered the fundamentals and were prepared to move on. Bookkeeping taught students how to complete business forms and ledgers. These classes gave students knowledge that was helpful in pursuing a college education or a career.

Learning to use office equipment, Charlotte Uphold tallies figures in Accounting.

Students practice typing speed, skill, and accuracy in Typing I.

Row 3: David Holler, Don Warnick, Brian Glisan, Lisa Moore, Barbara Oester, Jackie Gatterman, Jeff Spiker, Roxanne Zuckerman.

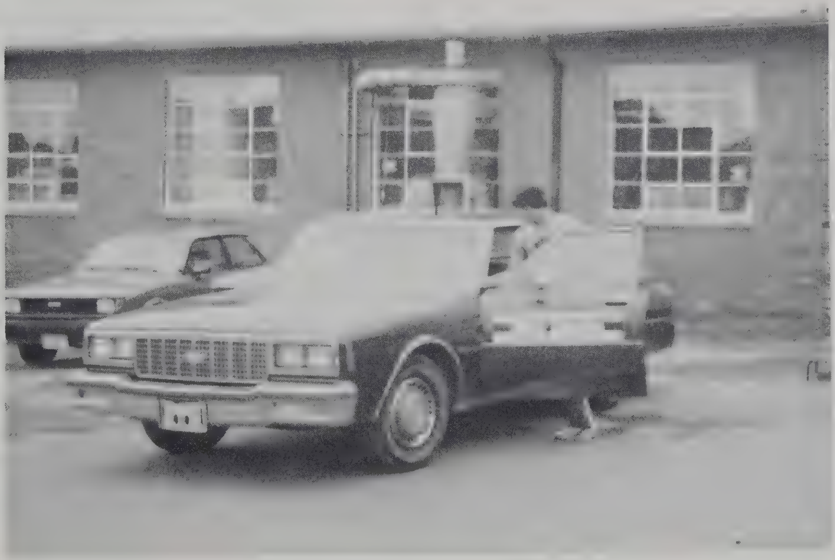
OFFICE ASSISTANTS
Row 1: Renae Sisler, Shelly King, Lori Sisler, Diane Hetrick. Row 2: Valerie Bittner, Mary Ross, Phyllis Yoder, Connie Wiley, JoAnn Deal, Julia Brenneman.

Students Acquire Proper Driving Techniques

Driver Education taught many future drivers the skills needed for them to drive. The semester course, instructed by Michael Sines, takes students through a series of three segments. To begin with, the students read chapters from the book to gain the general knowledge needed. Following the classroom, the students advanced to the simulator where they practiced driving in a realistic atmosphere. To complete the course, students were permitted to use the Driver Ed. car and improve their tecniques.

Studying various traffic sign designs and the proper meaning of each in Driver Education, Gary Frantz prepares to take a test.

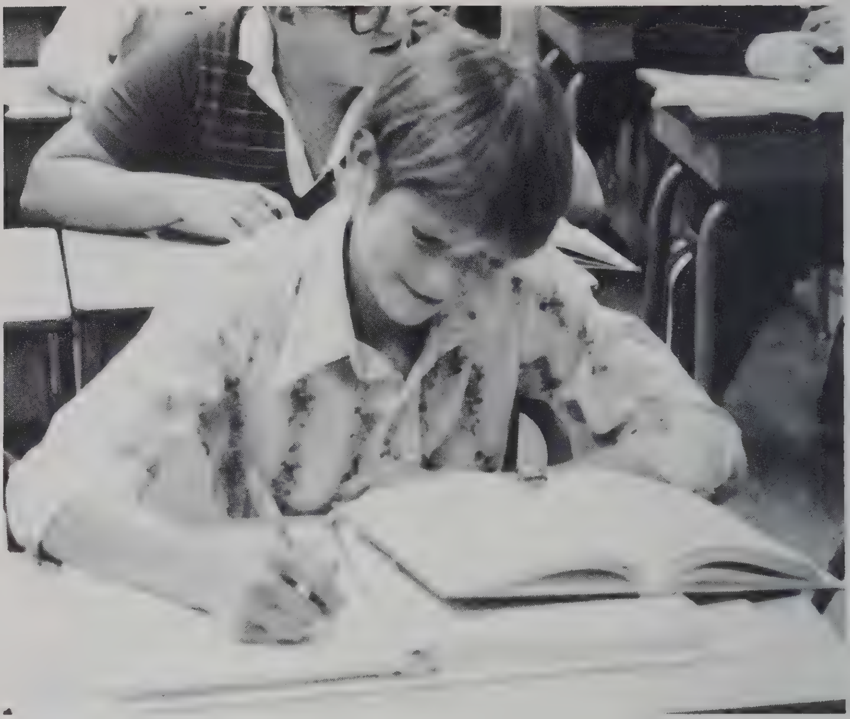
To gain an understanding of driving and to gather necessary skills, students participate in the Simulator under the direction of Michael Sines.



A vital part of the Driver Ed. course is to give students on-the-road driving practice. Preparing to utilize his skills, Buddy Friend steps into the car.

Academic Worth Evident In English Courses

Required by all Sr. High Students, English has always been a vital class. English courses ranged from spelling and composition to learning about American Folklore. Students can utilize these skills in speech contests, journalism classes, and business practices.

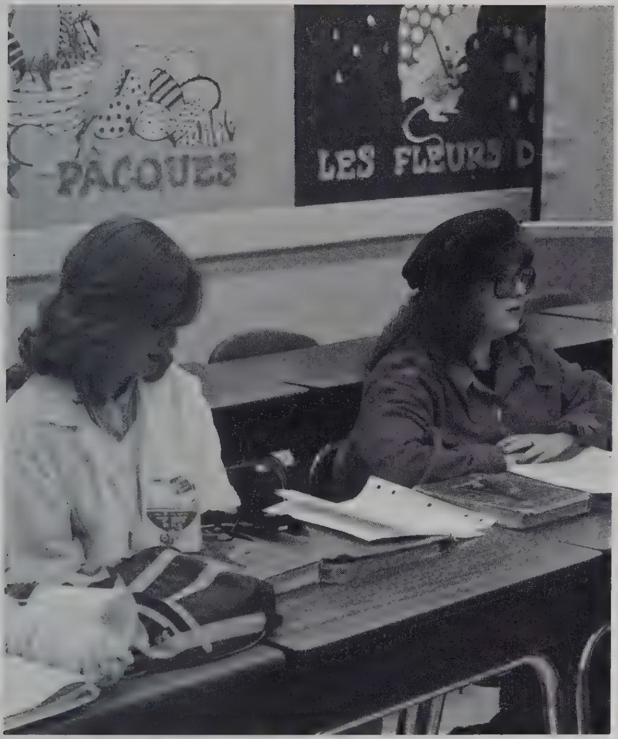


John Carr ambitiously completes his grammar exercises in 9th grade English.

At the end of the 3rd term, students in English 10 Prep. tally classwork scores to discover their final grade.

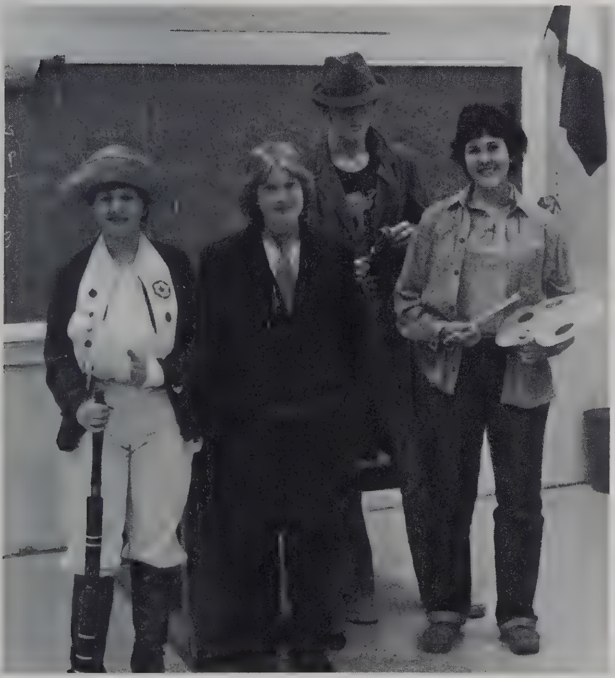
Presenting a speech in 10th grade English class, Dave Ward speaks about himself.

French Language Examined By Students

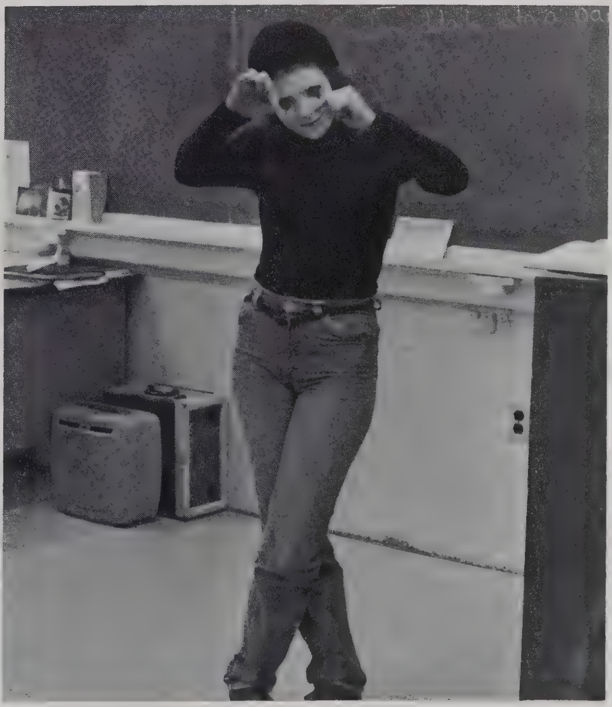


French students discovered the art and fun of learning a second language. The French I, II, and III classes are an important course for academic students. The classes added fun activities such as singing French songs, watching French movies, and cooking French crepes. The French classes were a good way to introduce students to another culture differing from ours.

Kathy Shives and Veronica Yoder listen intently as Miss Norris translates and explains conjugation.



During Foreign Language Week, students dress up as famous French figures. Posing after their presentations are: Debbie Wagner, Laurie Stanton, Bradley Yoder and Tracey Sweene.



Presenting a biography of French mime artist, Marcel Marceau, Jana Harshman mimics the actions of the famous clown.

Household Knowledge Gained Through Home Economics

Home Economics classes prepared more students for the perils that face homemakers. The classes taught students how to maintain a home and basic food preparation. A tea was hosted by the Home Economic class to gain an understanding of entertaining guests. While studying a unit on child care, several pre-school youngsters were brought in for the students to care for. Home Economics provided students with the necessary knowledge for future homemaking.

Learning to assemble latchhook rugs, the Senior Home Economics class works ambitiously.

In hopes of achieving a good grade, Connie Tasker paints her ceramic miniatures.

Beginning an additional project, Brenda Sines crochets an afghan.

Demonstrating holiday crafts for the FHA are Mrs. Opal Fazenbaker and Mrs. June Beachy.

Mathematical Equations Challenge Minds

Mathematics has always been a required course and this year was no exception. Ninth graders chose between a general math class and Algebra I. Academic students had the right to chose from advanced math classes ranging from Geometry to Trigonometry. The math classes were an ideal way for students to challenge their minds and aide their mathmatical educations.

Adding figures on his calculator, Mike Winebrenner finishes his lesson in Consumer Math.

Theorems and postulates pose serious problems for some students. Perplexed, Christy Fratz completes a proof in Geometry.

Studying equations in Algebra II, Tawney Cowan and Bob McKenzie help one another.

Furthering her mathematical education, Charlotte Maust takes notes in Trigonometry class.

Active Students Enroll in P.E.

The 9th grade girls realize that jumping jacks, sit-ups, and other exercises are an integral part of phys.ed class as they warm-up before playing volleyball.

Taking roll is only one of Connie Rodeheaver's duties as an aide in a 9th grade girls phys. ed. class.

Young Musicians Express Talent

To aid Mr. Schwing in Sr. Chorus and further their own skills, Karen Rexrode plays piano while Laverna Bender turns pages.

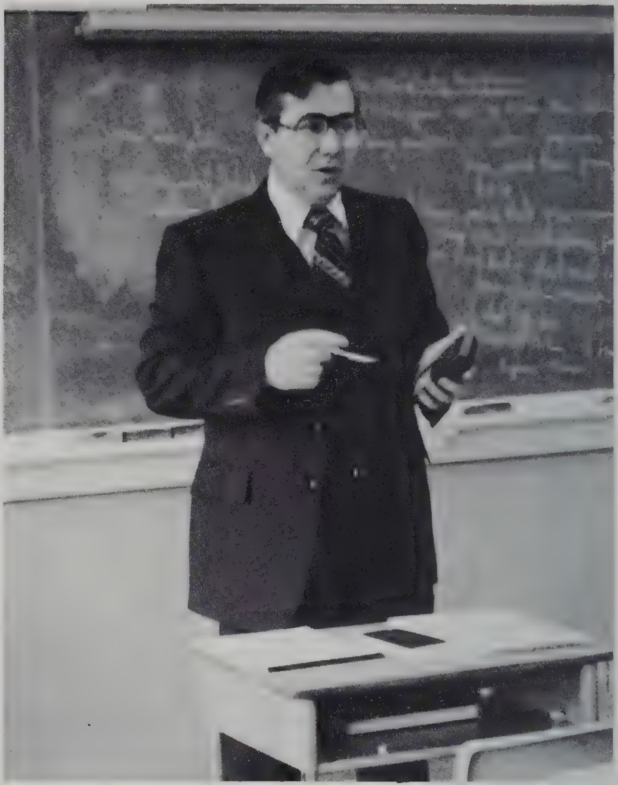
Throughout the year, many musically inclined students expressed their talent through band and chorus. The two classes, under the direction of Mr. Melvin Schwing, provided a combined Christmas concert for the students and faculty on December 23. Three chorus members traveled to the University of Maryland to participate in the All-State Chorus. The Senior Band ventured to Niagara Falls to perform in the 22nd Annual Blossom Festival Parade and stayed from May 8-10.

With the intent look of concentration and dedication on their minds, the Sr. Band clarinet section rehearses for the Christmas Concert.

Practicing for the Christmas Concert, the Sr. Chorus blends harmony and melody to produce a heavenly effect.

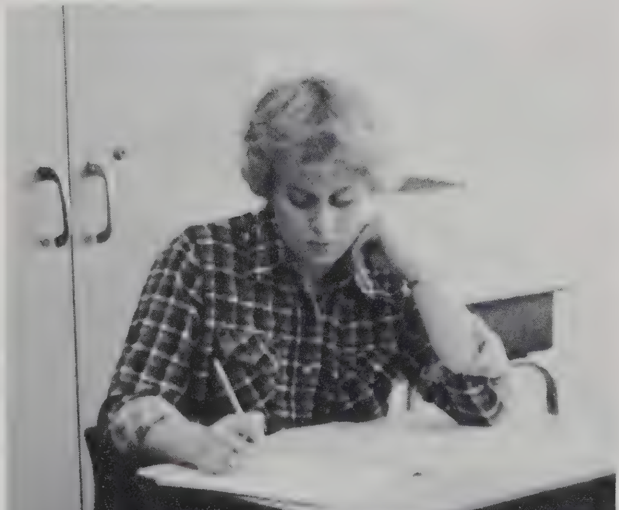
Gina Bender and Tammy Beachy exercise their flute skills as they play "The Nutcracker Suite" in Sr. Band.

Social Sciences



Expanding the social sciences department, two new classes were added to the curriculum. The first, Contemporary Problems, evolved by combining the old Sociology and P.O.D. classes. Taught by both Mr. Robert Yunker and Mr. Joe McKenzie, the class basically involves the same topics with a few added extras. The second, Family Life, instructed by Mrs. Betty Wellborn, gave students an understanding of physical hygiene and parenthood. These were only two of the options open to students aside from required history classes.

Contemplating the answer for a multiple choice question, Bobby Garlitz finishes his test in U.S. History.



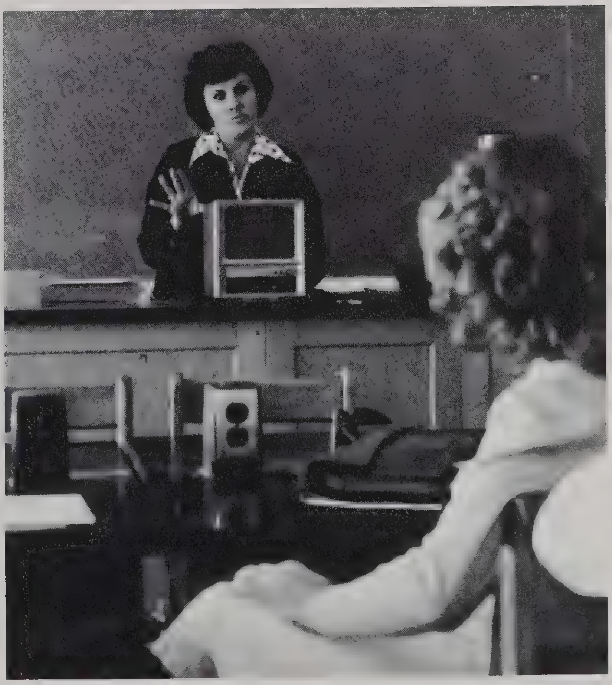
Studying thanatology and the processes of death in Contemporary Problems, Patty Collins quickly takes some notes.

Acting as spokesperson for the Garrett National Bank, Mr. Dale Rodeheaver explains financial responsibilities seniors face after graduation.

Broaden Perceptions

As Lisa Moore tests her short-term memory in Psychology, Mr. Robert Yunker guides her with a Reward vs. Punishment technique.

Completing an independent worksheet in Contemporary Problems, Doug Broadwater and Don Gillum work quickly.



Representing the Garrett County Health Department, Carol Clark discusses disease, health, and hygiene.

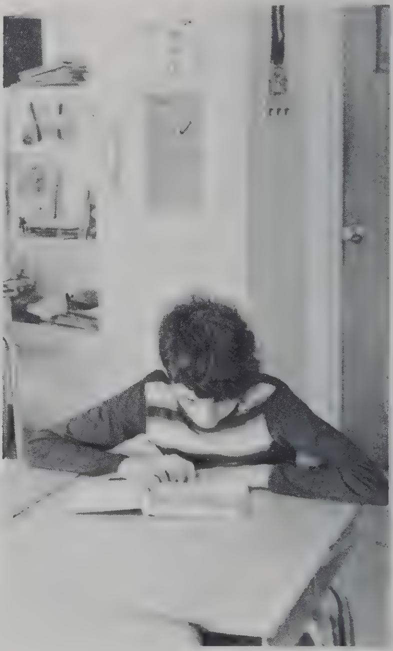
Students Gain Incentive To Work

The Special Education classes taught students how to really work and study. Because so few students were enrolled in the program, each student was given individual attention. Classroom activities were planned by Mrs. Katherine Douglas and Miss Debi Alkire to teach students new skills. Mrs. Sonya Golden, an aide for the program, assisted the teachers and aided the students. The program gave students the incentive to work and strive for better grades.

Taking turns reading from their books, Dora Dilsworth and Gary Michaels listen as Miss Alkire explains the passage.

Miss Alkire and Dora Dilsworth discuss the unfamiliar vocabulary words found in the new chapter being studied.

Listening attentively as Mrs. Douglas explains a newspaper article, her class asks questions about uncertain topics.



Perfecting his reading skills, Eddie Ash completes an Advanced Reading Primer.

ALPS Reform Students' Behavior

The ALPS program continued to guide students with behavior problems. The ALPS (Alternative Learning Programs) was originated and installed at Northern in September, 1979. Since then, the ALPS has successfully helped students change their behavior in order to get back into the regular classroom. The main goal of the ALPS program was to teach students to follow directions and obey rules so as not to misdirect others and reach their own educational goals.

Having a small problem with his class assignment, Bill Wilt gets assistance from Mrs. Diane Klotzbaugh.

.EVEL IV
LEVEL II

Working on his fourth class lesson for the day, Jamie Winebrenner concentrates on his work.

Studying for a test at the end of the week, Terry Trout takes notes as Steve Kinsinger's questions are answered by Mrs. Diane Klotzbaugh.

Journalism - An Extension To The

Journalism was an extension or addition to the English curriculum this year. Students could practice and utilize their writing skills by enrolling in a Journalism course. Journalism classes offered at Northern were The Viking (newspaper) or The North Star (yearbook). The Viking, instructed by Mrs. Lucille Sines, had a staff of 31. Co-editors were Fred Fox and Rosie Wiley. The newspaper was published seven times during the school year and provided students with a personal glimpse of the school. Advised by Miss Joanna Miller, The North Star had a staff of 15. The yearbook recounted and highlighted some of the years most important events. Co-editors, Charlotte Maust and Regina Bender worked closely with the staff. The Journalism classes were a wise choice to interested students and could prove worthwhile to those considering it for a career.

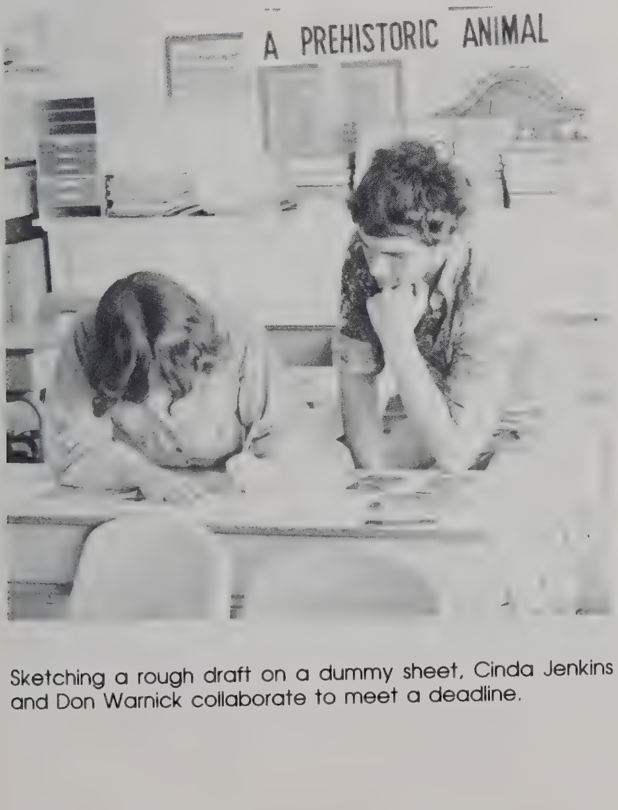
Checking over a finished page, Rosie Wiley makes last minute corrections.

Cutting and pasting articles for the final edition of The Viking, Fred Fox works carefully.

With fingers flying across the keys, Phyllis Yoder uses her typing skills to benefit the newspaper.

English Curriculum

Preparing a double-page spread, Donna Ringer sorts through stacks of pictures searching for good, clear shots. Beside her, Kirt Harshman writes copy and captions to be typed for the yearbook publication.



Sketching a rough draft on a dummy sheet, Cinda Jenkins and Don Warnick collaborate to meet a deadline.

Felicity Kaiser studies her options and considers spacing for photographs, headlines, captions, and copy before finalizing her page.

Future Tradesmen Comtemplate

After completing a major project in Building Trades I & II, Don Gillum proudly poses beside his stone fireplace.

An integral part of Woodshop class is learning to utilize the machinery. While experimenting on the lathe, Greg Rodeheaver constructs a candle holder.

With screwdriver in hand and his project resting in the vise, Steve Folk perfects his cutting board in woodshop.

The World Of Apprenticeship

Vocational skills proved helpful to many students. In Auto Mechanics, students repaired car engines and practiced fixing exhaust systems. Building Trades gave students the basic knowledge of building a brick fireplace. Many potential architects found Drafting class rewarding. They were to design house plans and put formulations and creativity to use. These classes taught skills to students interested vocational careers.

Standing under the car in Auto Mechanics class, Charles Frye adjusts the muffler.

Making rough sketches for their lay-outs, Phil Smith and Sam VanSickle help one another in Drafting.

Changing the tires on a car, Rick Yommer and Mike Bradshaw check for holes.

Future Farmers Acquire New Techniques

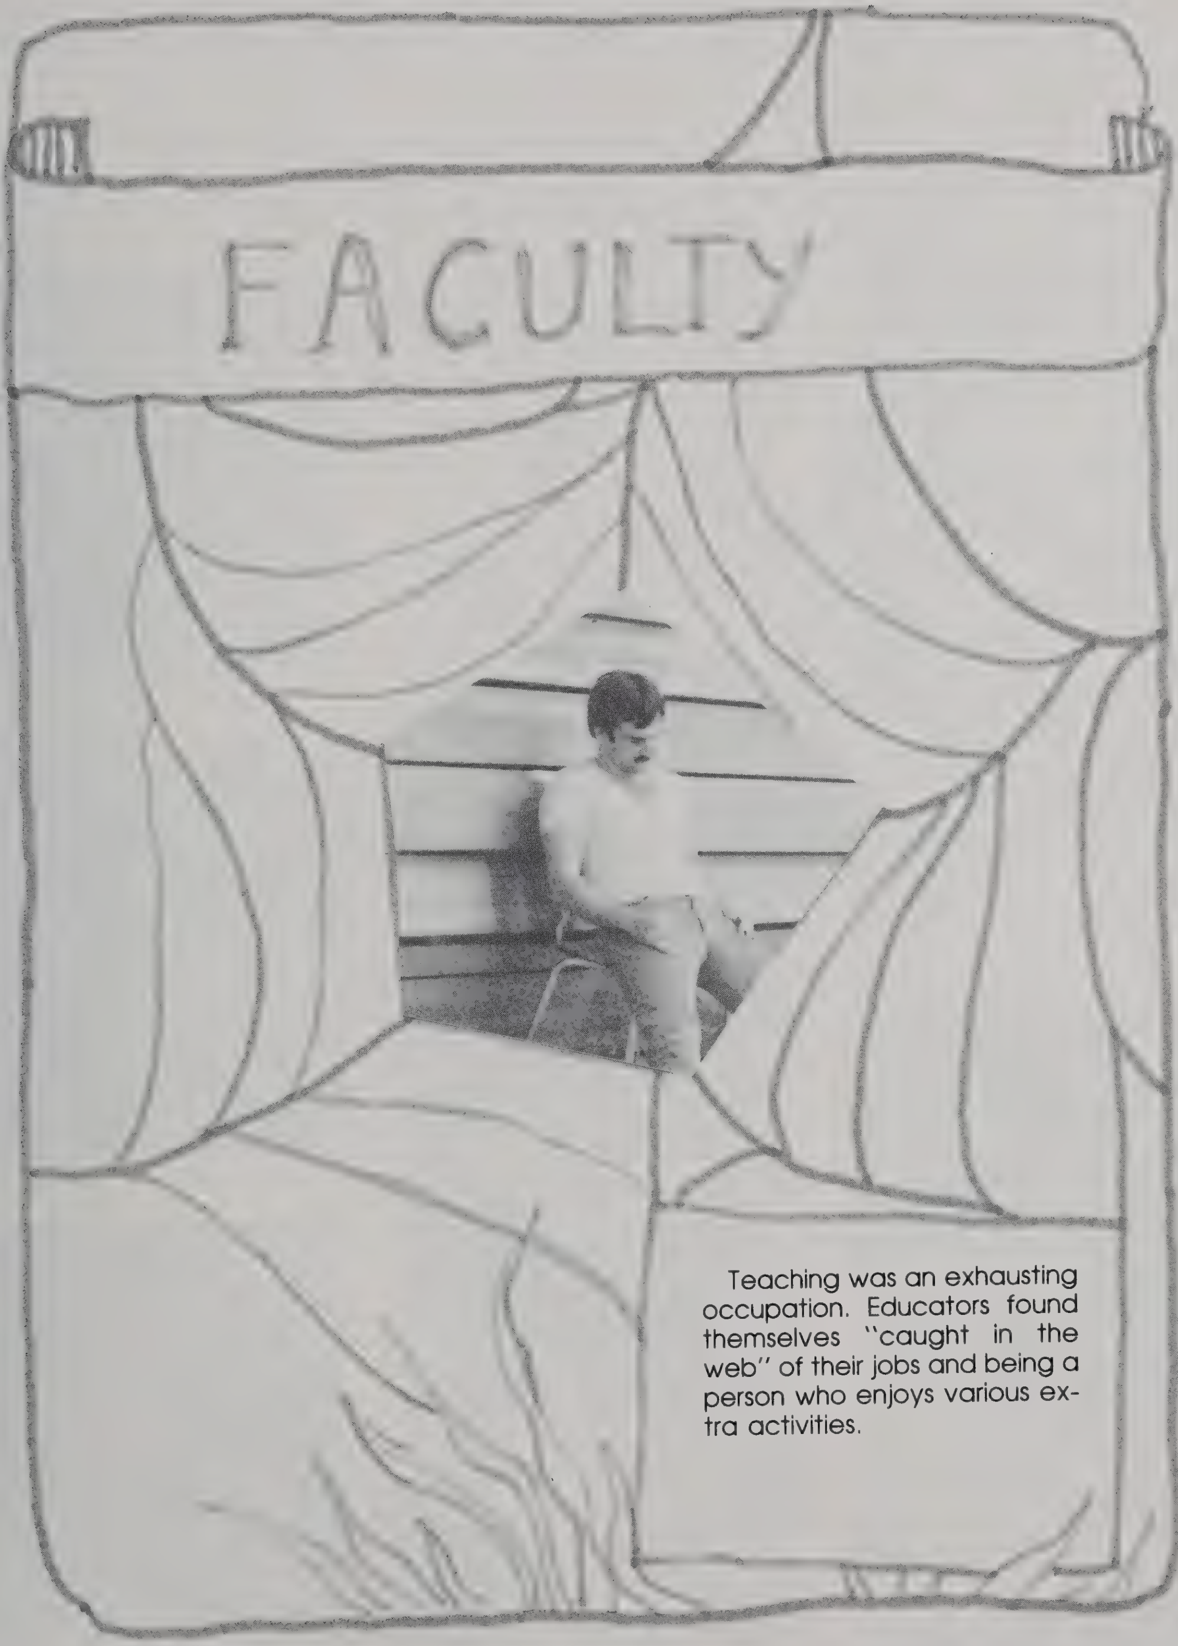
A future career in farming required students to participate in Vocational Agriculture classes. The courses taught students such skills as horticulture, animal care, and planting. The agriculture department cultivated and planted a large quantity of beans in order to raise their finances.

Wrapping and twisting the brightly colored ribbon, Mr. Harold Loughrie's Horticulture class prepares bows for the Christmas poinsettas.

With such an advanced system in the Vocational Agriculture Department, one of the three greenhouses sprouts garden plants.

For each Mother's Day, flowers are grown by the Vo-Ag Dept. One of the varieties grown are mums, which reach lazily toward the sunshine.

FACULTY



Teaching was an exhausting occupation. Educators found themselves "caught in the web" of their jobs and being a person who enjoys various extra activities.

The administration provided the backbone for the school. The secretaries, librarians, and teachers' aides had a busy job keeping everything running smoothly.

In the course of the year, Mrs. Geraldine Teats found time to schedule 400 to 500 students who wanted to see Mr. Jack Lear about schedule changes. Since September, 17 new students had enrolled, and school records had to be transferred and schedules made.

Mrs. Betty Richter, on an average daily basis, helped 38 students find and check out books. She kept records of overdue books which amounted to around 100 books every week.

In a year, Mrs. Dorothy George handled close to a quarter of a million dollars. The majority of this money was received from magazine sales. She was kept busy answering the telephone, about 50 times every day.

To teachers as well as to students, keeping in shape is a very important aspect of life. Teachers use diverse ways to keep in shape. Those teachers that serve as coaches get a workout along with the team members. The physical education teachers participate with the students in their classes.

After-school sports include playing on local slow pitch softball leagues. Four teachers, Mr. Martin Green, Mr. Harvey Speicher, Mr. Jack Settle, and Mr. Joe McKenzie, participate in this summer sport.

Golfing is another sport enjoyed by Mr. Robert Yunker and Mr. Joe McKenzie.

Remaining active is important for physical health. Teachers realize this fact and remain active even with their busy schedule.

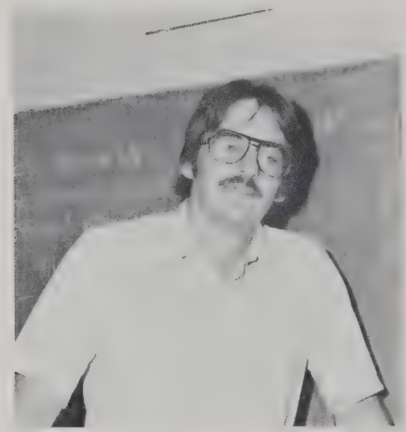
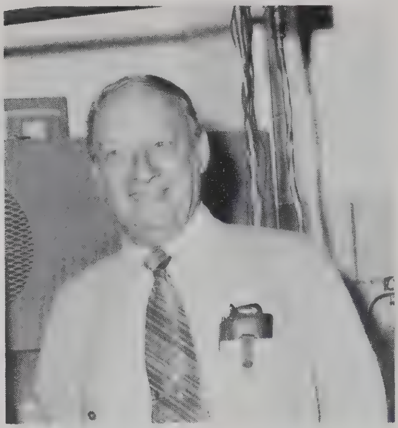
Most students feel homework is all they can handle, but some teachers have a job to prepare and work for and then do homework for college classes. Playing two roles as teacher and student can be pressurizing, so teachers must use their time wisely. Mr. Jay Walbert and Mr. Martin Green attended Frostburg State for evening classes to get their master's in biology and education, respectively. Mrs. Linda Buckel took her first graduate course, Developmental Theory of Experienial Growth, which led up to her graduate degree in reading. Mr. Jack Settle attended sessions to gain credits towards a degree in guidance counseling, while Mr. Harvey Speicher completed the CPR course for the upcoming P.E. year.

Educators Play Dual Roles

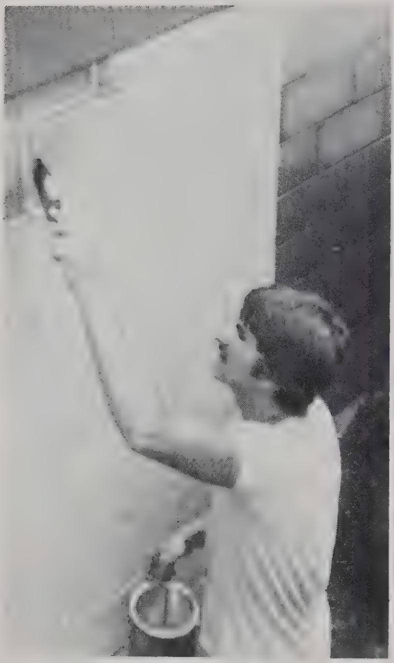
Mr. Jay Williams Walbert
Courses: Science, Chemistry, Physics
Activities: Senior Class Advisor



Mr. Everett W. Warne
Courses: Auto Mechanics I, II & III
Activities: Auto Mechanics Club Advisor



Miss Jacqueline Williams
Librarian
Activities: Collectors Club Advisor



Building his own house gives Mr. Jay Walbert the opportunity to make practical application of the principles of physics.

Mr. Robert H. Yunker
Courses: Contemporary Problems, Psychology, Health
Activities: Baseball Coach, Senior Class Advisor

Mrs. Vonda M. Yunker
Courses: U.S. History
Activities: Girls Athletic Assoc. Advisor, Volleyball & Softball Coach, Majorette Advisor, Junior Class Advisor

Even with the responsibility of teaching, the educators found time to invest in other activities. Coaching demanded valuable time. Coaches needed to make sacrifices of family time. Both Mr. Robert Yunker, in the baseball season, and Mrs. Vonda Yunker, in the volleyball and softball seasons, spent hectic away-from-home hours in training and coaching the players of various sports.

Besides the role of educator, most teachers were responsible for a family, and they had to commit after school time to their families. Soon after school started, on September 19, Mr. Jay Walbert became the father of a daughter. Adjusting to these roles as father was a new experience.

Mr. Ron Kuhn

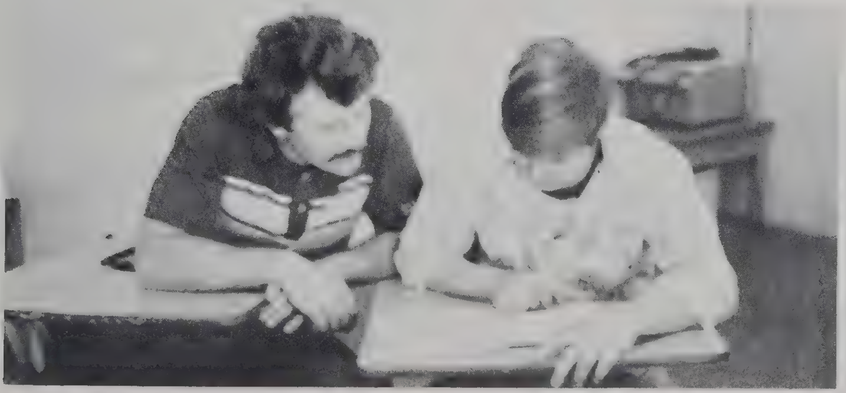
Mrs. Elizabeth J. Wellborn
Family Life Instructor



Working diligently, Bill Wilt receives help from Mr. Al Via. In February Mr. Via became the Guidance Counselor for the Alternative Learning Programs (ALPS) as a replacement for Mr. Mark Alkire, who went to work at a group home in LaVale, Maryland.

Personnel Services Invaluable

Keeping the school clean and looking neat is the custodians' job. Often putting in long hours after the school is empty, they keep the building in order.

The cafeteria staff propares student lunches and serves both the hot lunch and the salad bar. Their job is to prepare a balanced meal at a reasonable price.

Bus dirvers also put in long hours before and after school. Students depend on buses, not only for transportation to the school, but for field trip services.

These three groups of people are willing to work hard a a job with long and unusual hours. Sadly enough, they are often least noticed in the course of the day, but the school depends on their services.

Senior Fun Planned By Activities Committee

The class of '81 has been characterized as carefree and fun loving. The senior activities committee tried to come up with new and exciting ideas to make our senior year more enjoyable for all. A Senior party and a senior trip were two of the highlights of the year. Although the senior year was filled with fun, the planning that goes into such activities was demanding and tedious. Meetings were held frequently to make preparations for bus scheduling and reservations, along with other traditional activities. Fulfilling these duties was a worthwhile task benefiting all seniors.

Music plays in the cafeteria, while the seniors move to the gym. Cathy Thomas and Cindi Carr participate in a basketball game at one end of the gym.

An activity reserved exclusively for the seniors was the annual senior party. On November 21 approximately 85 seniors came out for a night of fun and games.

A major attraction was the volleyball game that occupied half the gymnasium, while the second largest attraction was a basketball game at the other end of the gym. Two vigorous games of ping-pong occupied the lobby. In the cafeteria music was supplied for dancing or just for listening plesure and there was a game of Twister to make things even more exciting.

Refreshments such as coldcuts and a variety of cheese were supplied for sandwiches. Among the "munchies" were favorites like potato chips, pretzels, and an assortment of soft drinks. Two akes, one yellow and one chocolate, had been baked and appropriately decorated for the party.

As the evening drew to a close, individuals took with them more cherished memories of their senior year.

Filling positions of leadership as class officers are James Fox, President; Brian Glisan, Vice-President; Tracy Sisler, Secretary; Steve Fratz, Treasurer; Kimberly Goehringer, Historian; Lisa Clutter, Parliamentarian.

Being accustomed to the responsibility of leadership, the class officers graciously accepted the challenge of leading our class. Meetings were held frequently, and the wheels of planning for the senior trip and the senior party began to turn. Nominations for class flower, class colors and motto were made. The hard work done by these people made the year a successful and exciting one.

Making sure her order was filled correctly, Lori Sisler inspects her packet of senior pictures.

Final School Pictures Taken

Upon the days of September 23 and 24 senior pictures were taken by Jostens. In two weeks proofs arrived back at school and were distributed to seniors. To single out the pose for their final high school picture was not an easy decision. In two weeks picture orders were taken and anxiety built as we awaited the return of Josten with our orders filled. Almost immediately the exchanging of pictures with friends began. It was one way of remembering the faces of both our close and casual friends.

Senior class advisors for the class of '81 are Mrs. Mary Schurman, Miss Joanna Miller, Mr. Robert Yunker, Mrs. Margaret Pratt, and Mr. Jay Walbert.

Senior homeroom teachers were the class advisors. Miss Joanna Miller took upon the task of seeing that senior pictures were taken by Jostens. Even with his hectic schedule, Mr. Robert Yunker took charge of graduation. Seeing that the senior keys, memory books, and supplies were distributed was also his responsibility. Mrs. Margaret Pratt took over as advisor for the senior trip. Besides filling positions as teachers of particular courses, each tried to give our class the benefit of their own personal experience.

Students Take Part In ECAP

One of many major decisions that seniors are faced with is that of a future career. The Early College Admissions Program permits students to attend Garrett Community College, thus waiving their attendance at Northern. The students must meet requirements for high school graduation while also taking essential college courses. Many hours of hard work and research are involved. After completing the criteria at G.C.C.; they may transfer to another college to continue studies to meet qualifications for a degree.

Getting a head start on furthering their education Heidi Bittner, Donna McFetridge, Angie Zehr and Katrina Stieringer attend G.C.C. full time on the Early College Admissions Program. Not pictured are Lori Klotzbaugh, Henry Wilson, Alan Sweene, Oren Orendorf, Larry Artice and Sandy Lanphear.

Baffled by college choices, Gina Bender discusses possibilities with Guidance Counselor, Mr. Thomas.

Decisions . . . Decisions . . .

One of the many decisions that faced a graduate is that of a future career. Overwhelmed by the number of possible colleges, trade schools, and even armed forces, seniors looked for the one which would provide him or her with the best opportunities for educational advancement.

Tests like the ACT, SAT, and the PSAT were given during the junior and senior year. These tests made it possible to be awarded scholarships, as well as informed colleges of one's interests and abilities. Career-bound students accepted the challenges and faced the future with high expectations.

Memories are in the mind, but senior memory books will help keep them forever. Charlotte Maust and Phyllis Yoder create some of their own.

Memory Books Arrive In January

At the beginning of the school year seniors ordered graduation supplies, including memory books which were available in three styles. A collection of pictures, cards, letters, ticket stubs, and autographs soon inhabited the pockets and pages of the memory books as individuals created their own story. Filling the memory books forced seniors to dig even farther into their past, reviving memories that had rested in the back of their minds for years.

Anxiously opening their graduation packages Elizabeth Hanft, Lisa Georg, and Kim Goehringer look forward to graduation day.

Graduation Draws Near

On April 15, Jostens arrived with graduation supplies. Called by homeroom sections, seniors reported to the cafeteria where they received packages containing announcements, thank you notes, caps and gowns, name cards, souvenir announcement covers and appreciation gifts. Caps and gowns were powder blue for the girls and royal blue for the guys.

As seniors dreamed about graduation, mixed emotions arose. Looking forward to graduating and leaving Northern to bigger and better things, and yet saying good-bye to friends made in years past, were the thoughs common to all seniors.

On the evening of November 21, the Senior party is held in the school cafeteria and gymnasium. Kirt Harshman looks admiringly upon the cakes decorated for the occasion.

Class Prayer

Dear Father,

We approach the end of our high school years with mixed feelings. We look with regret on the mistakes we've made in the past, thankful that you're so ready to forgive. We remember with laughter the fun times you allowed us to have, but we realize that those fun times will soon be memories. We look towards stepping into the world with anticipation, but also with fear, realizing that we don't know as much as we thought we did.

You brought us through tests that we thought marked the end of the world. You showed us that those "impossible" homework assignments were indeed conquerable. You helped us prove to ourselves and the world that we can set goals and reach them, too. It was you who picked us up after we fell and helped us realize that times of defeat should be followed with times of even harder work.

Thank you for our past experiences, for our parents, for our administration and faculty, and most of all, thank you for being the loving, forgiving God you are, and for putting up with us when our stupidity outweighed our intelligence.

Help us to realize that graduation isn't an end but a beginning. We will cherish our golden memories with care, but keep us from dwelling in the past. Walk beside us through our future years. Remind us that it was you who made life possible. We need strength from you while we strive towards perfection. Fill us with the love and hope that only you can provide.

We Come in Jesus' name.
Amen

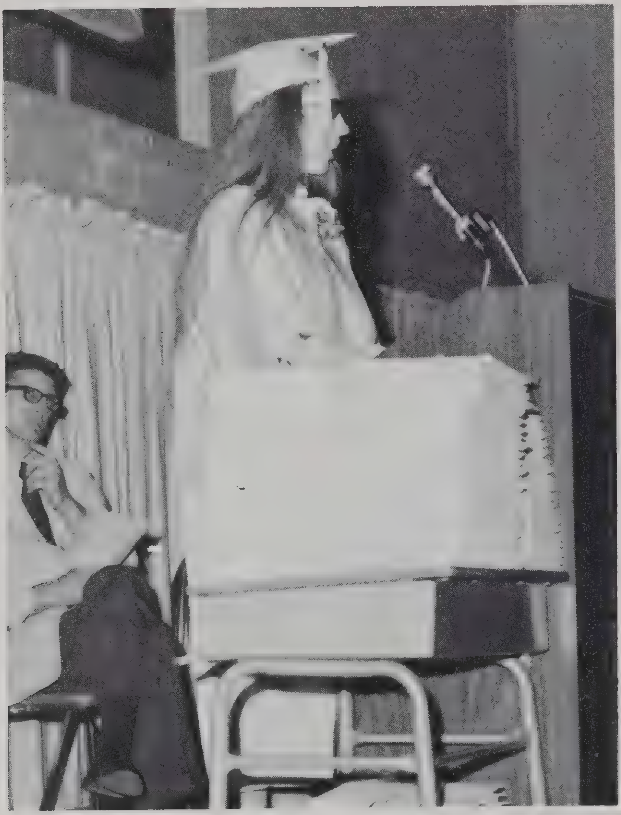
Looks Like

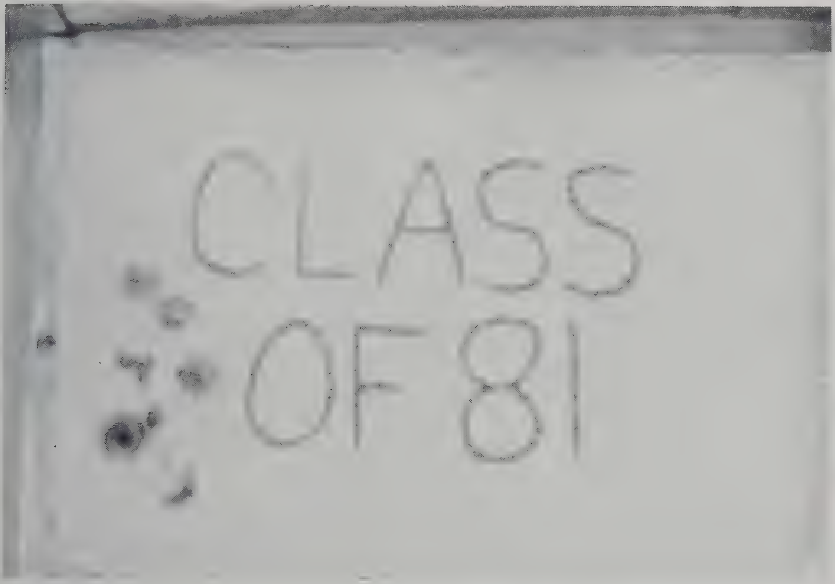
Fulfilling her position as Salutatorian for the graduating class, Charlotte Maust delivers a speech at the commencement ceremonies. Charlotte also received the Danforth "I Dare You" award.



Valedictorian of the 1981 Senior Class, Linda Miller presents her address to fellow classmates and attending relatives and friends.

As a symbol of "commencement," each senior changes his tassle to the left side of the hat after everyone has received his diploma.

We Made It



On May 31, seniors participated in one final activity together-GRADUATION! The day we all thought would never come, had finally arrived. By 7:30, the cafeteria was filled with seniors discussing past experiences. At 8:00 as sounds of "Pomp and Circumstance" were heard, hearts began to pound and caps were straightened. As seniors filed into the gymnasium, minutes of the program slipped away. After the program was over, graduates recessed to the cafeteria where mixed emotions became evident. Tears of joy and sadness fell, as hugs were exchanged by members of the class of '81.

In honor of obtaining a record of perfect attendance through 12 years of school, Jim Fox received a certificate of recognition from the school. Jim was also a recipient of the Danforth "I Dare You" award.

Class History

It seemed as if time was creeping by at the slowest speed when, WHAM!, we were sophomores before we knew what was upon us. We all wondered how we had come this far so fast. Tracy Sisler and Katrina Stieringer were chosen as J.V. Cheerleaders. Lisa Ward and Robin Rodeheaver represented our class on the Drill Team. During football season, Jeff Spiker, Walter Wachter, Greg Carr, Rick Yommer, and William Wilt showed their stuff by making up the sophmore members of the football team. LeeAnn Cervi and Lisa Clutter served as the only sophomore majorettes. Three tough guys, William Wilt, Dave Stein, and Don Gillum were chosen to wrestle for the Huskies. Kathy Garlock and Barb Bowser played as sophomores on the girl's volleyball team. R.T. Wengard, Jom Fox, Brian Glisan, Tim Kinsinger, Jeff Frost, Steve Fratz, and Weldon Yoder made it for the J.V. Basketball team, while Dick Bender served as the only sophomore on the Varsity squad. Baseball season rolled around with Dick Bender once again the only sophomore on the squad.

After an active summer, we walked through the doors of Northerns as Juniors-realizing that these next two years would be the end of the secure feeling of high school life. Jim Fox was elected president of our junior class with Lisa Clutter, Tracy Sisler, and Kim Goehringer filling the posts of vice president secretary, and treasurer, respectively.

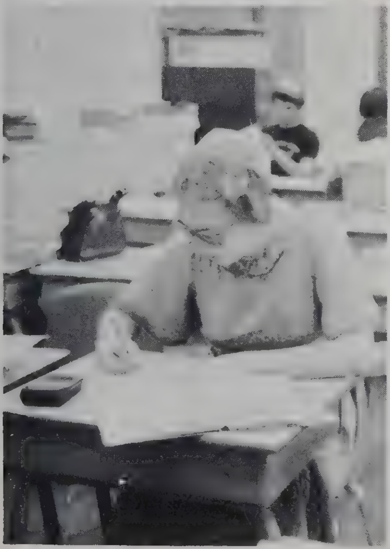
The whole class kept busy selling candy bars to raise money for the prom. Our gift to the Seniors was held May 12, 1980 at the McHenry House with music by "Windfall". Tracy Sisler was the only junior chosen for te Varsity cheerleading squad. Lisa Ward and Robin Rodeheaver once again participated on the Drill Team as juniors. Katrina Stieringer and Lori Klotzbaugh were the only two juniors filling the places on the color guard guard. Colette DeWitt, Terry Edgar, Lois Frazee, and Pam Kissner took part in the Early Graduation Program in order to graduate with the Class of 1980. David Holler, Elizabeth Hanft, and Kevin Bender moved up a step to graduate with our class. Rick Yommer, Greg Carr, Jeff Spiker, Steve Fratz, Walter Wachter, Larry Frazee and William Wilt played as juniors on the football team. Dave Stein, William Wilt, and Don Gillum represented the grapplers once again in their junior year. Barb Bowser, Patty Collins, and Kathy Garlock played on the girls volleyball team with Patty Collins as the only junior on the girls basketball team. Lori Sisler and Patty Collins were the junior girls to play softball. Serving on the boys baseball team, we had Steve Fratz, Brian Glisan, and Jeff Frost. Jeff Spiker, Greg Carr, Dick Bender, Tim Kinsinger, and Weldon Yoder made up the juniors on the boys basketball team. Lisa Clutter was the only junior majorette. Several people in our class pursued other interests. Among them were Elizabeth Hanft, who attended Forestry Conservation camp, and Kim Kinsinger becoming a member of the Junior Policewoman Association. Lisa Clutter, Jim Fox, and Regina Bender attended Shenendoah Conservatory Seminar along with Charlotte Maust attending the Maryland Summer Program for the Gifted and the Talented. Charlotte Maust also attended the Maryland Science Symposium. Linda Miller and Angie Zehr represented our junior class and the Sr. Chorus by attending the All State Chorus Progam.

Unconsciously amazed at ourselves for sticking it out for what seemed like forever, the long awaited event finally arrived-we were Seniors! Jim Fox was elected president of the Senior Class with Brian Glisan, Tracy Sisler, Steve Fratz, Kim Goehringer, and Lisa Clutter filling the posts of vice-president, secretary, treasurer, historian, and parlimentarian, respectively. Jim Fox held the honor of president of the Student Council with Lisa Clutter, and Tracy Sisler serving as vice-president, and secretary, respectively. Band Council members of our senior class consisted of LeeAnn Cervi, Brian Glisan, Regina Bender and Kathy Garlock filling the posts of president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer. Lisa Clutter became head-majorette with LeeAnn Cervi marching ahead of the band as the drum majorette. Tracy Sisler led the cheers as she became captain of the Varsity Cheerleaders in her senior year. Robin Rodeheaver became captain of the Drill Team. Barb Bowser, escorted by Dick Bender, was chosen as Sr. Pricess for Autumn Glory Parade. Rick Yommer, Jeff Spiker, Greg Carr, Walter Wachter, Larry Frazee, William Wilt, Dave Stein, Steve Fratz, were all the seniors of the Varsity football team, with Dave Stein, William Wilt, and Don Gillum wrestling for the Husky grapplers. As basketball season srarted, once again, Tim Kinsinger, Dick Bender, Greg Carr, and Weldon Yoder played as the seniors on the squad. Dick Bender, and Greg Carr played on the baseball team. Kathy Garlock, Barb Bowser, and Patty Collins played as the only seniors on the girls volleyball team, with no senior girls on the basketball team. Patty Collins and Lori Sisler once again played on the girl's softball team. Tracy Sisler, escorted by her brother Larry, was crowned Homecoming Queen. Steve Fratz, Dick Bender, and Tim Skidmore attended Boys State. The usual senior pranks were played during this year as we all grew braver as the last days drew closer. The Prom was given to us by juniors with the theme "Springtime Magic". The 1981 prom was held May 23rd at the McHenry House with music provided by "Spectrum". Lisa Clutter was crowned Prom queen. The seniors went through the usual parade of receiving the materials we needed for graduation. There were countless parties to celebrate the end of this phase in our lives. Many new doors were being opened with endless possibilities in store for the future. We will cherish these years for the rest of our lives. The memories will be locked in our hearts forever. We will all remember our friends with fondness and laughter, mixed with the sad, melancholy feeling of growing apart. The Class of 1981 will make an undeniable mark on the world.

Twelve Seniors Rank In Top Ten Percent

The Seniors who captured the top twelve positions are Donald Bender, James Fox, Jeffrey Frost, Brian Glisan, Elizabeth Hanft, Kirt Harshman, Barry Maust, Charlotte Maust, Linda Miller, Phyllis Yoder, and Weldon Yoder. Not pictured is Lisa Clutter.

At last, the long hours of hard work and studying had paid off. Having driven themselves to their full potential, they managed to secure the positions in the top ten percent of the graduating class. Dedication and determination were qualities each student possessed. At the awards assembly on May 21, at 9:00,. each was presented with certificates as a reward for their efforts.

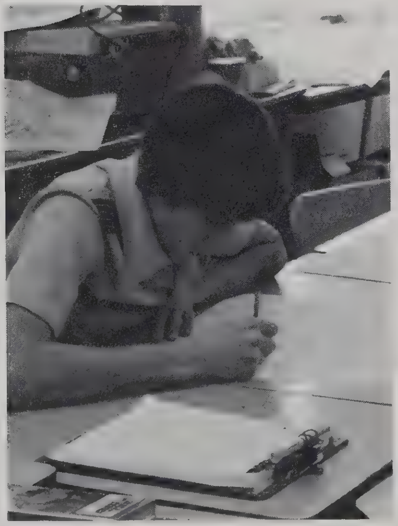


It takes hours of studying to make high marks. Charlotte Maust concentrates on her assignment to get the most from it.

Serving as valedictorian for the class of '81 is Linda Miller, and Charlotte Maust serves as salutatorian.

A required class for seniors is Contemporary Problems. Robin and Connie Rodeheaver and Greg Carr use a worksheet and notes from the chalkboard in preparation for class discussion.

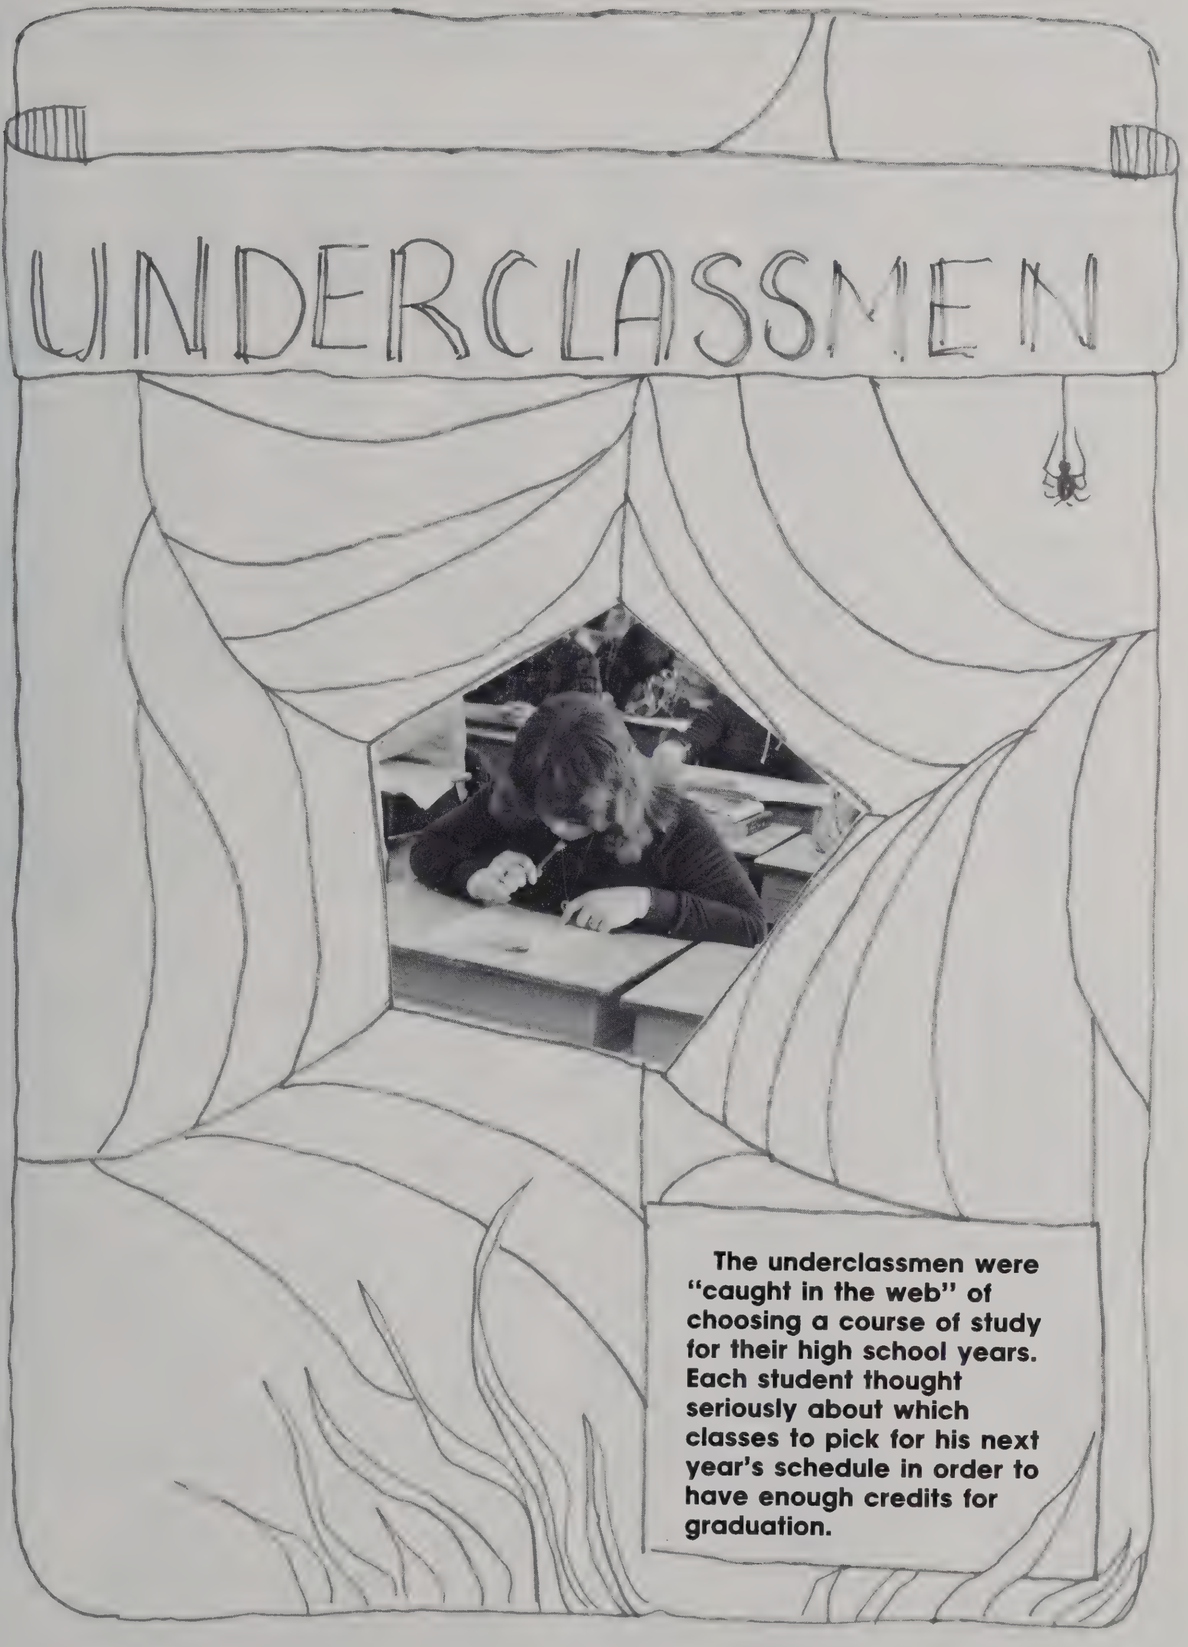
Seniors Finish Varied Courses



A favorite elective for Weldon Yoder in his four years of high school has been art class. He sketches a nature scene that will be finished in pastels.

The trumpet duet played by Jim Fox and Brian Glisan in the Spring Concert by the band is accompanied by Jesse Yoder at the piano.

UNDERCLASSMEN



The underclassmen were "caught in the web" of choosing a course of study for their high school years. Each student thought seriously about which classes to pick for his next year's schedule in order to have enough credits for graduation.

During the school year the Juniors each had a specific role to play in earning money for a successful prom. The biggest project was selling candy. Mrs. Vonda Yunker, one of the Junior Class Advisors, ordered 200 cases of candy—100 cases of Caramel candy bars and 100 cases of M&M's. The class made over $2000 as a profit.

A knowledge of both facts and concepts is considered important in the study of U.S. History. Laverna Bender and Robert M. McKenzie take a test that consists of objective and essay questions.

U.S. History and English were two courses required for Juniors. They could choose from either Business English or English mini-courses. In order to get an earlier start with their future plans, some scholars decided to combine their junior and senior years.

Juniors Prepare For Prom

Officers elected by the Junior Class are Fred Fox, President; Robert Lipscomb, Vice-President; Rosemarie Wiley, Secretary; Donna Ringer, Treasurer.

Planning for a successful prom takes a great deal of time. Discussing the decorations for the prom are Greg Durst and Mrs. Donetta Nice.

The Juniors spent much time making preparations for the Junior-Senior Prom. In the class treasury there was over $2,800 to go towards the prom. Two thousand dollars of this total was raised by selling candy. "Springtime Magic" was chosen by the Junior Class Officers as the theme for the prom. They also chose "The Rose" as the theme song and Spectrum for the band. The prom was held on May 23 at the McHenry House.

Serving as Junior Class Advisors are Mrs. Vonda Yunker, Mrs. Donetta Nice, Mrs. Lucile Sines.

For the nomination of the Autumn Glory Queen, her court, and their escorts, each homeroom selected a girl and a boy. A ballot was made with all of the nominations, and members of the professional staff selected a couple from each grade level to represent the school. The winners rode on a colorful float in the Autumn Glory Parade held on a breezy day in Oakland on October 11, 1980.

Sherry Golden and Brad Yoder are chosen to represent the Sophomore Class in the Autumn Glory Festival.

By rocking in a Rock-a-Thon sponsored by the Girls' Varsity Club, Lani Dailey raises money for her athletic jacket.

The Girls' Varsity Club held a Rock-a-Thon in the cafeteria on March 13 and 14 to raise money. The money that was raised by each girl went for her athletic jacket, and money earned by girls who already had their jackets went into the general fun for trips and other activities.

Solemnly, David Field and Pam Barnard walk down the isle to the sound of "Pomp and Circumstance."

Graduation items are an important part of the senior year. Phyllis Yoder brings back to mind many rusty memories while signing Charlotte Maust's senior memory book.

Much needed supplies for graduation were handed out to the seniors by homeroom sections.

The Clock Ticks On . . .

Hats are secured and collars straightened as the watches read 8:00, and the sound of "Pomp and Circumstance" sift into the ears of the waiting seniors.

Pacing back and forth, Linda Miller nervously practices her speech.

The end of the year was probably more important to the seniors than to any other grade. Until May 30, the 12th graders were attached to the web of school, but suddenly, on May 31, they were cut off and forced into the "real world" for the first time. The remainder of the students returned to school for a week more of classes, waiting for their turn to be set free for the summer break.

Coach Jeff Rice treats Phil Carr's injured leg as concerned referees and fellow team mates look on.

The doors of the 1980-1981 school year were slowly closing. Teachers collected books and gave their students their good wishes and sound advice about the future. The seniors were gone from the halls and the class rooms, and the underclassmen anxiously awaited the 3:20 bell on June 5, when they, too, would be released. After leaving Northern High School, students realized that being "caught in the web" was not a captured feeling, but instead was a feeling of security. Both the physical and the emotional injuries that had occured throuhgout the year made the friendships and concerns more apparent.

Mixed emotions become evident as uncertainty inhabits Lori Klotzbaugh's face, while the feeling of triumph spreads through Kirt Harshman.
